Fear, Many Kinds
Japan Fears Birth Control
What Can Mitchell Know?
A Lady Argues

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by The Star Co.

FOLLOWING A great war, the days of fighting and killing, the pendulum swings the other way, those that have been fighting suddenly become filled with many fears. It will amaze you to read the various kinds of "despair" listed by Professor Glenn Frank, new president of the University of Wisconsin.

There is BIOLOGICAL fear, PSYCHOLOGICAL fear, POLITICAL fear, ECONOMIC fear, HISTORICAL fear, ADMINISTRATIVE fear, MORAL fear. These fears can all be boiled down into one word, "NERVES." The only thing we need be afraid of is ourselves, our weaknesses. And fortunately we die, and our fears with us. Then comes a new, unfrightened generation. The baby, now learning to walk, will fear the great war no more than you fear the result of Napoleon Third's folly, in 1870.

THE JAPANESE also, brave as any nation, have their individual strange fears. The learned Japanese doctor, S. Washio, publishes his fears in the Trans-Pacific of Tokio. He is horrified by degeneration among Japanese, since the glorious Meiji restoration.

Policemen conspire with criminals, says he, mail carriers rob mail bags, or burn them, to save trouble. Men full of faith only yesterday "feel now that the world is near an end." Awhile ago in Japan, there was only one murder in several years. Now there is a new murder every day.

AND so it goes.

JAPANESE DISCIPLINE is ruined by skepticism, irresponsibility, hopelessness and licentiousness.

JAPAN IS worried by the birth control advocates. That warlike nation has 1,041 regular army officers, drilling all half grown male Japanese of the middlegrade and collegiate schools. And Japan fears that birth control may cut down the number of soldiers.

BUT THE birth rate among human beings is not controlled by laws, or by well meaning ladies devoting their lives to propaganda saying: "Don't have so many children and you will be happy." The price of food, the degree of civilization, the abundance or lack of employment, and a thousand things control birth.

Consider these two epitaphs in British churchyards. On a tombstone at Monk's, Kirby, you read:

"In memory of Eliz. Mott, wife of John Mott, who died October 24, 1726. Married forty-four years and the mother of forty-two children. A loving wife, a tender mother. Scarce left behind her such another."

In Conway churchyard a tombstone tells you:

"Here lyeth ye body of Nichs. Hookes, of Conway, gent., who was ye forty-first child of his father, Wm. Hookes, Esq., by Alice, his wife, and ye father of twenty-seven children, who dyed ye 20th day of March, 1637."

THAT ENGLISH mother, Elizabeth Mott, had strength, liked her husband, liked children, believed that she was doing something for her King and country, when she added forty-two little Englishmen and women to the population in forty-four years.

If you had talked birth control to her, she would have said: "Yes, but I am interested in children."

AUTOIST 'CUTTING CORNERS' WHEN CAR NEARLY HIT PRESIDENT

Washington, Sept. 21.—President Coolidge narrowly escaped being struck by an automobile and killed while walking in the downtown section of this city, and the driver of the car was arrested on a charge of violating traffic regulations. It cost him a $35 fine.

The President had just stepped from the curb into the street at a corner when the automobile, cutting the corner, was said to have borne upon him so suddenly that he was only saved by a Secret Service man grabbing his arm and drawing him back to the curb.

Another of the four secret service men with the President jumped on to the running board of the car and

FORD'S PROTEGE 'CAN'T FIDDLE OUT OF JAIL'

"Neither Thorpe nor any other man can fiddle his way out of jail."

This is the answer of Chairman Frank A. Brooks, of the State Board of Parole to the offer of Henry Ford to look after Philip W. Thorpe, lifer, whose musical artistry made such an impression on the automobile king over the radio.

As far as the chairman knew no application for a pardon for the man who slew Manuel C. Almeida, a taxicab driver in Fall River, had been made.

"But if the Thorpe case comes before the board," Brooks remarked, "it will be judged on its merits. As far as I am concerned, neither Thorpe nor any other man can fiddle his way out of jail."

GAG RULE DENIED BY DAVIS IN AIR DEFENSE

Washington, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—The American people were assured today by Acting Secretary of War Davis that there is "no reason to be panicky about the condition of the army air service."

Testifying as the first witness before the President's air board, Mr. Davis outlined the policy of the army air arm and pointed to the successful world flight by army planes as one achievement which

Coolidge to Pass Wallaby Along to the Zoo

Washington, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Informed today that a pet wallaby was on its way to the White House as a special gift for him, President Coolidge went into hurried conference with Secretary Sanders on the nature of the prospective addition to the mansion.

It was determined that the wallaby is a species of kangaroo, and it will be accepted and turned over to the keeping of the Zoo.

The gift is from J. A. Newman of Tasmania, in remembrance of the visit of the American fleet.

ALL CHECKER CABS IDLE

The striking drivers of the Checker Taxi Company claim they prevented any of the company's cabs being taken out today and held firmly to their demands.

They want union pay of $4 for a nine-hour day, with 53 cents an hour overtime, all uniforms furnished by the company, and union conditions of work to be the rule.

The men have been getting $3 a day for ten hours, with a commission on all business over $16. They were also asked to purchase their own uniforms and overcoats.

James E. Pitzgibbon, business agent of the union, said that the inspectors of the taxi company had been granted permits to carry revolvers, and he protested against this radical step, saying that none of the strikers were armed.

The auto picket line was a complete success from the standpoint of the strikers. By the scheme groups of autos are held in readiness near the company's garages on Irvington and Ipswich streets. The purpose was to trail any cabs that might leave, but as none of the 300 cabs left the floor of the garages there was no need of the pursuing automobiles.

YOUTH PINNED UNDER AUTO AND KILLED

Montague, Sept. 21.—(A.P.)—Monroe Fuller, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Fuller, of the Dry Hill road, was killed when his car overturned on Federal street and pinned him beneath it. Parties in a car ahead heard a crash and going back found Fuller caught in the wreck. He was taken to the office of a physician, where he died while being given first aid. Death is said to have been due to a spinal fracture.

SIX INJURED IN BLAST AT READING; ONE VICTIM BLOWN THROUGH WALL

Six persons were injured, three of them probably fatally, when chemicals exploded in the factory of the Leo Products Company, in the plant of the Reading Rubber Company, off Ash street, Reading, today.

One wall of the one-story brick building was blown out, the roof was lifted, and all the windows wrecked by the force of the explosion, which was audible for miles.

One of the victims, Daniel Marchetti, of No. 89 Washington street, Reading, was blown through one of the walls, receiving injuries which, it was expected, would cause his death.

He was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

Three other employes rae in the Winchester Hospital, the names of two of them on the danger list, all suffering from burns and broken bones.

They are:

Murphy was burned, but his injuries were not serious enough to warrant his name being placed on the danger list.

Two other employes, Harry Thornell, a fireman, and George Castine, received minor burns, which were treated by physicians.

A fire followed the explosion, and was extinguished by the Reading department.

The accident occurred shortly after the six employes had gone to work in the building, which is leased to the Leo Products Company, of Lynn, from the Reading Rubber Company. The firm manufactures artifical leather, including automobile tops, patent toes, etc.

Quantities of chemicals are used in the process of making the products, and it is believed that is some unexplained way these chemicals blew up.

The roar of the explosion rocked adjacent buildings and shattered the windows in nearby dwellings.

Large, heavy windows on three sides of the factory were blown out of the walls, while one wall was leveled to the ground. Debris, bricks, as shundles of felt were scattered about the neighborhood, and, for a time, it was feared a number of persons were killed.

STATE POLICE HUNT 'LOST' BROCKTON GIRL

The State police joined today the search for Dorothy Dudley, Brockton heiress, who disappeared a week ago in the North Abington woods, and today it was indicated two ponds may be dragged in the belief that she may be a suicide or a murder victim.

FIANCE NOW BELIEVES MISSING BROCKTON GIRL WAS SLAIN

Before their last walk. Missing Dorothy Dudley and her fiance, Ernest Briggs, seated on the running board of Briggs' auto in his back yard.

Terminating the quarrel, as Dorothy abruptly leaves her fiance and heads for the solitude of the woods.

Plunging through the thicket. How Dorothy must have gone on by herself after leaving Briggs in the heat of a quarrel. She sought solitude in the woods.

What may have happened to the missing girl. Was she kidnaped as she emerged from the woods? These pictures were posed for the Evening American.

land conferred with Police Chief Nickerson of Abington today relative to a thorough search of the woods and dragging of Cleveland Pond and another pond, both less than a mile from where Dorothy plunged into the woods.

All day yesterday the girl's sweetheart, Ernest Briggs, her father and her aunt, Sarah Dudley, searched the woods themselves, without avail.

Briggs, who has believed the girl was remaining in hiding to punish him for a sweetheart quarrel, is now convinced she was slain.

He told his story once more to Police Chief Nickerson, adding to it every detail that he could remember, of their talk together, of Dorothy's suddenly walking away from him and of her disappearance into the shadow of the woods.

Chief Nickerson said that Briggs had added several details which made a second vigorous search imperative, and the posse was called early today.

If this search fails a group of Boy Scouts from Brockton and Abington will probably be called out to aid the searchers.

ASKS ANOTHER SEARCH.

A peculiar feature of the case is that Briggs has already admitted that the girl left him because of an unimportant argument and that he saw her dash into the woods.

He admits that while he knew these woods were considered dangerous at night, he walked away from the spot where the girl entered the bushes and that he did not bother to aid her nor did he notify the police.

At first he said he felt positive that the girl had gone to a distant city, but when Chief Nickerson discussed this possibility with him and announced that it would be useless to search the woods, Briggs suddenly changed his opinion and asked the chief to conduct a second search of the woods and swamps in that section.

Police officials were investigating rumors today that Miss Dudley had been seeking the services of a physician in one of the small towns along the South Shore. It had been reported that she had been planning to see a doctor in Raynham, but, according to Briggs, her only interest in that town was that she planned to purchase an automobile from a second-hand dealer there.

WAS BUYING AUTO.

According to Briggs, the missing girl was supposed to pay $36 to the automobile man last Thursday night and was to make weekly payments until the automobile was fully paid for. According to the agreement in the purchase of the automobile she could not use it until all payments were made.

When Briggs was questioned concerning his romance with Dorothy he admitted that it was she who did most of the courting and that on four different occasions she had asked him to marry her.

He said he had argued against getting married because of the fact that she had no divorce papers as far as he could find out. He said he finally agreed to marry her if she could show the necessary legal documents.

The police are inclined to believe that if the girl has not gone on an extended vacation her body will be found in the woods.

Relatives of the girl stated today that they still believe she has gone to another city in search of work and will be heard from later.

Photographs of the girl are on their way here by airplane from Tacoma, Washington, where her parents live. They will be broadcasted all over the country unless the girl or her body are found before the photographs arrive.

DAVIS DEFENDS AIR SERVICE; NO GAG RULE

has "proved its right to public confidence."

"The amount of equipment is inadequate," he said, but this is controlled by funds available, while its personnel, although somewhat limited, is unexcelled by any air service in the world."

Specific recommendations for betterments and economies in the air service, Mr. Davis said, presented "a broad subject," which he would request the privilege of discussing more fully at a later time.

Mr. Davis, who first urged appointment of the board, pledged full co-operation of the War Department in the inquiry, and said that if during the investigation charges were made against its administration he would welcome an opportunity to reappear and answer them.

INQUIRY IS WELCOMED.

"The War Department," Mr. Davis said, "welcomes this inquiry into the air defenses of the country by this board of disinterested citizens. National defense is a sacred trust of all the people. They have the right to know whether appropriations are being wisely and economically expended and whether the defenses of the country are planned, organized and equipped in the most effective manner.

"In the consideration of this vitally important subject honest differences of opinion naturally arise. They exist within the War Department itself, and the proper expression of honest convictions is to be encouraged.

"The War Department impugns the motives of no critics; it has the right to demand the same fair dealing for itself. It seeks to keep an open mind on all debatable questions, to adopt any constructive suggestions which it can approve, to improve the service wherever its means will permit.

MUST WEIGH ALL FACTS.

"In carrying out its serious responsibilities for the national defense it is morally bound to insist that mere assertions must be backed up by hard facts, that due consideration must be given to the costly experience of the past in weighing speculations as to the future, that change for the sake of change alone is unjustifiable.

"I believe that the board wants sense not sensation, facts not fancies, arguments not mere assertions. All studies, records and reports, whether public, confidential or secret, are at your disposal. Officers, enlisted men and employes will appear before you and testify fully, freely and frankly. There has not been, and is not now and will not be any 'muzzling' of army officers in the expression of their individual opinion.

DENIES "BUREAUCRACY."

"I personally have long felt that such an inquiry is essential, in order that public opinion may rest assured that the national defense is being wisely safeguarded and is in the hands of officers of ability, loyalty and vision, and not of bureaucrats.

"I believe our personnel is at least equal in skill, hardihood and bravery to that of any other nation. The equipment is inadequate in numbers and part of it, built during the war, unsatisfactory in condition, a situation which is gradually improving. This condition is due solely to lack of money and can be remedied only by money. That our technical and research work is satisfactory is evidenced by the fact that the army air service holds an extraordinarily large percentage of world records in aviation.

"To sum up, after a fairly intimate association with them for three years, I do not hesitate to assert that our air service officers and men are competent, efficient, loyal and patriotic.

MUST "PREPARE FOR WAR."

"In peace the primary mission of the air service, as of all the other services, is to carry out the injunction of our first commander-in-chief, George Washington. 'In time of peace, prepare for war.' This is accomplished by:

"(1)—Developing its personnel and material to the highest efficiency and assisting in the development of the air service branches of the National Guard and the organized reserves.

"(2)—Preparing plans of action for the mobilization of personal and procurement of material in accordance with mobilization and war plans of the War Department.

"The secondary mission in peace is to promote in every possible way the welfare, progress and prosperity of our country.

"In war, the mission of the air service is:

"(1)—As a fighting arm, in combination with the other fighting arms, to win the victory, and bring about peace as quickly, as effectively and as cheaply in lives and money as is humanly possible.

URGES COMMERCIAL FLEET.

"(2)—As a supply branch, to develop and procure the equipment and supplies pertaining exclusively to the air service in such quantities as may be required for its operations.

"In considering these missions I believe one thought should always be kept in mind, that the war mission must be the predominant consideration—it must always govern."

"As regards commercial aviation, it is everywhere recognized that the transportation facilities of a nation are a vital element in its defence organization. Hence, the creation of an extensive air transportation system forms an integral part of any national defence policy. Furthermore, the development of self-supporting aeronautical industry offers far-reaching advantages.

Because of its essentially mobile character, it is more directly adaptable to military purposes than most industries. It will provide a reserve of both flying and ground personnel for rapid development, in an emergency, of the necessary military aviation. As commercial aviation develops into a self-supporting industry, it will simplify the problem of defence."

"In the platforms of airplane manufacturers, the War Department is convinced that a strong airplane industry is vital to the national defense. The industry has been starving to death since the war, due to the fact that it has been dependent solely on military orders, but I believe that a much brighter prospect exists a-ipresent. The War Department has done and will do everything in its power to assist the aircraft industry.

NATION'S WARTIME NEED.

"We must have a sufficient number of qualified manufacturers of aircraft to design and build planes of the latest type in sufficient quantities in case we are forced into war. Due to rapid developments, aircraft cannot yet be standardized and the unit cost is necessarily high.

The government should pay a price which will enable manufacturers to make a fair and reasonable profit. Until the industry is established I believe the restrictions governing the method of governmental purchasing might well be relaxed temporarily, under proper safeguards."

"It has been thoroughly understood there would be necessary a great enlargement of manufacturing facilities which now exist. Surveys of all existing factories either have been made or are in progress and in some cases the manufacturers have made definite approved plans for such expansion.

DIRIGIBLES FOR NAVY.

Mr. Davis pointed out that the army and navy joint board had turned over the development of rigid dirigibles to the navy, but stated that the "approved plan for the organization of the air service provides for a certain amount of lighter-than-air craft which, it is believed, will be of value in military optrations."

Mr. Davis made these recommendations:

"Additional personnel and material should be made available for the air service when government finances permit, but not at the expense of other vital needs of the department.

"A larger reserve of flyers should be built up when funds permit.

"Any duplication of army and navy service installation, if any still exist, should be eliminated.

"An additional brigadier-general should be authorised by Congress to head the supply section of the Air Service and to develop the industrial preparedness plan.

"Restrictions on the method of government purchases of airships should temporarily be relaxed, under proper safeguards.

"A clear delimitation of the missions of the army and navy in coast defense should be adopted.

"The permanent housing bill introduced by the War Department in the last Congress should be passed, in order that the intolerable living conditions now existing in many posts may be improved.

GIRLS RESCUED

Both are in the wool business, Walker with Paul O'Sullivan & Co., No. 132 Summer street, Durgin, with Cordingly & Co., No. 226 Summer street extension.

The sloop, an eighteen-footer of the Knockabout variety, overturned in some of the heaviest water experienced in Buzzards Bay this Summer.

One of the four men swam to a small raft a short distance from the capsized sloop, and was waving his shirt when he caught the eye of Walker and Durgin.

Walker took the tender of his launch and went first to the raft and later to the sloop. With Durgin's assistance he succeeded in getting all eight aboard "The Barnacle," his own boat, without mishap.

Taken back to Quissett Harbor, the rescued were wrapped in blankets and sent to their homes in Newton and Walpole.

Walker and Durgin, so far from taking unto themselves the demeanor of heroes, let those they had saved from a watery grave go without so much as asking their names.

The eight were spending a week-end at a cottage at Megansett. An ambition to give the girls a thrill by sailing close into the wind probably caused the upset, in the opinion of the police.

DECIDE TONIGHT ON WALTHAM CITY HALL

Whether the City of Waltham will abandon its plans to build a new city hall on the common will be decided at a special meeting of the Waltham City Council tonight. Since residents of the city have appealed to the courts to prevent the city from erecting the structure on the common, a plan o construct the building elsewhere may be considered. The awarding of conracts for the erection of the proposed building was prevented by the filing of a petition for an injunction against the city by Former Patrick J. Duane.

ROMANCE BEGAN AT FOOTBALL BATTLE

and shaped a new destiny for a suntanned youth.

But it was not the exciting play just completed in the annual Army-Navy football game. It was love, if there ever was love, that crackled in the mutual casual glance across the tiers of intervening seats.

This week Mildred Marshall, belle of Staunton, Va., but now of No. 96 St. Botolph street, and Javier Basanez, nephew of former President Obregon of Mexico and son of a cousin to President Calles of Mexico, will be married.

Call it, if you will, another casualty of the 1924 football season.

Fate was poised last year, with a louder whistle at her lips, when the first kick-off came in the gridiron battle between the cadets from West Point and the Midshipmen from Annapolis.

But not until the fateful play that brought the throng to its feet, did she score, and then the tall, straight figure of Javier Basanes, from Vera Cruz, turned and his eye caught that of pretty Mildred, member of one of Virginia's first families.

It was all over then. To a Boston Evening American reporter, Miss Marshall, who is only nineteen, said today:

"His tall, handsome figure and distinguished carriage immediately arrested my attention.

"But of course, I did not let him know that. It seems that Cupid was working in the other direction, too, for Javier fell madly in love with me at first sight.

"Luckily we managed to meet formally through a mutual friend and from then on affairs began to get serious. I came to Boston and at every opportunity, Javier came to see me.

"We finally decided to make the leap together—and here we are. Of course, there will be no big wedding, just a quiet little affair and a delayed honeymoon. For Javier must go back to school. He wants to be a mining engineer and follow his father's pursuits.

"Next June we are planning to leave for Mexico and then we'll have a real honeymoon—with all the romantic setting we need."

Basanes is only twenty-two years old, son of the late Javier Basanez, geologist and oil promoter of Vera Cruz. His mother is Enriqueta Obregon Basanez, sister of Obregon and cousin of President Calles.

Last year the young Mexican attended Dean Academy at Franklin; this year he enters Dartmouth. At Dean he was prominent in athletics.

Pretty Mildred is the daughter of Robert Lee Marshall, banker and broker, of West Virginia, and the former Rachel Booth.

Two years ago the girl was graduated from Mary Baldwin Seminary and she is now attending school in Boston.

The couple filed marriage intentions at City Hall last Friday.

The driver gave the name of Nathan D. Smith, of Baltimore. He was charged with cutting corners and failing to give right of way to pedestrians. Smith was released on furnishing $25 bond for his appearance in Traffic Court.

After having forfeited collateral bond, Smith today had the forfeiture set aside, stood trial and was fined $25.

Smith appeared in court personally a short time after his case had been called, and the bond ordered forfeited because of his tardiness.

Information of the President's narrow escape and the resulting arrest of Smith came from the police.

The President's experience recalls a similar one which Mrs. Coolidge had during the Summer at Swampscott, Mass., when she narrowly escaped being struck by a motorcycle on the road near White Court.

20 Feet From Coolidge, Says Accused Autoist

Baltimore, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Nathan D. Smith, retired business man of Baltimore, whose automobile was reported as having narrowly escaped striking President Coolidge in Washington, said today that he did not come within twenty feet of hitting the President.

He said he was driving his car down a Washington street at a speed of not more than eight miles an hour. Rounding a corner he saw a group of men ahead. A young man jumped on his running board, he said, and told him to watch out, that the President was just ahead.

"Who are you?" Mr. Smith said he asked. "I am a secret service agent," was the reply. The agent then called a policeman and ordered his arrest. Mr. Smith said he would appear in Washington to answer the charges.

SLEEPING CHILD IS BITTEN BY BIG RAT

GEN. HART'S ACCUSER AT DEATH'S DOOR

500 of Boston's Barbers Have Quit Calling 'Next'

While Eunice Olson, one year old, lay sleeping in her home, No. 10 Mason street, Charlestown, a big rat bit her on the lip. Mrs. Phoebe Olson, mother of the child, was attracted by the baby's cries and rushed to the rescue. Treatment was given the child at Haymarket Relief Hospital.

STRIKERS' PICKETS DEFIANT

Police Are Called as Trouble Looms Near South End Shop

The raucuous cry of "Next" dwindled in volume today, with 500 of the 1,500 journeymen barbers in Greater Boston on strike.

Well worn razor strops hung neglected in scores of closed shops while their owners made up groups of gesticulating pickets outside the places of defiant proprietors.

Only one report of disorder was made. The trouble occurred in front of No. 200 Northampton street, where a crowd of strikers gathered, protesting against the shop being kept open. The police were called and dispersed the throng without making any arrests.

All shops that remained open were picketed, and the strikers were hopeful of obtaining heavy accessions to their ranks before tomorrow.

MAY BE EXTENDED.

Although a majority vote for a strike was cast at yesterday's meeting at headquarters, No. 987 Washington street, not more than one-third of the 1,500 journeymen barbers reported for picket duty today.

Then affected are employed only in men's shops, but if successful in the present battle, intend to ask the barbers in women's shops to join them in another strike for uniformity of wages and conditions.

The strikers demand a fifty-six hour week, with hours from 8 to 6 except Saturday, when they are willing to work from 8 to 7 downtown and 8 to 8 uptown.

THEY WANT TIPS, TOO.

The men also want $25 a week, with tips and a certain percentage of the receipts, agreeing to work a half day when holidays fall on Mondays or Saturdays.

A uniform scale of prices is demanded, namely 50 cents for a haircut; 20 cents for a shave; singe, 25 cents; plain massage, 40 cents; neck shave, 5 cents; boy's haircut, 40 cents and 50 cents on Saturday; plain shampoo, 40 cents; scalp treatment, 75 cents; bobbing, 50 cents; first shingle $1.00 and others 75 cents, and tonics, 20 cents.

$25,000 BAIL FOR CONVICTS

James Luna, notorious burglar from Chelsea, and John Hamilton, alias John Rickfels "gentleman thief" from Newton, who attempted escape from the State Prison a week ago Sunday, after assaulting their guards, were before Judge Lourie in the Superior Court today and were held in $25,000 bonds.

Luna and Hamilton pleaded "not guilty." The home-made tools and weapons which they had procured were brought in as evidence against them.

'HOLD-UPS' IN MAYORAL CONTEST

Adlow Charges Many Candidates This Year Are "Adventurers"

Characterizing a large number of entrants in the mayoralty contest as "political adventurers" and "hold-up" candidates, Representative Elijah A. Adlow, Republican, of Roxbury, today filed a bill in the House for a return to party elections in Boston.

khe school committee alone, under the Adlow bill, would remain nonpartisan.

A similar bill has been filed by Senator William I. Hennessey, Democrat, of Dorchester.

SEPTEMBER PRIMARIES.

Adlow wants prmaries in every odd numbered year on the Tuesday after the first Monday in September, the election to follow on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

Every candidate for mayor would be required to get three thousand signatures of qualified voters in his own party and the council candidates would be required to secure one hundred signatures.

"Since the charter now in operation has been effect," said Adlow, "no Mayor has held office by a majority vote of the people of Boston nor has any Mayor represented anything except his own personal group.

HOLD UP CANDIDATES.

"This year's contest has brought into the field a large number of political adventurers and has presented as large a collection of hold-up candidates as ever embarrassed a public in making an intelligent vote.

"Party government has been the only effective means of crystallizing public sentiment and concentrating responsibility. It can save Boston from its present plight."

"NORTHERN LIGHTS" PLAY PRANKS WITH WIRES

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—That empyrean phenomenon, the Aurora Borealis, with its pyrotechnical display, while incidentally working havoc with telegraph wires, was visible over a wide territory early today.

The Northern Lights were seen in many parts of Montana and at other points as far eastward as Northern Illinois. The phenomenon took the form of luminescent bands hanging from the zenith, and snow fell in Montana.

Telegraph companies reported that electrical agitation in the atmosphere, a characteristic of the Aurora Borealis, interfered with wire service over the country.

DEBS BACKS FOE OF BOB LA FOLLETTE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Eugene V. Debs, speaking here for the candidacy of John M. Work, Socialist nominee for United States Senator, said Work was the only candidate representing the working people against the "capitalists."

Work attacked Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., Republican nominee, asserting that he was not following in the footsteps of his father, who in the last presidential campaign left the Republican party. He said also, and that the only Progressive young Bob was not a real Progressive party in Wisconsin was the Socialist organization.

POLICE SEEK MISSING CHELSEA BOY OF 12

The Chelsea olice have been asked to find Pasuale Deflumeri, twelve, who has been missing from his home since last Wednesday morning.

According to his father, with whom the boy lived at No. 30 Hawthorne street, Chelsea, Pasquale, or Patsy as he is better known, left for school. He was a pupil in the Shurtleff school.

The boy, large for his age, had on a new gray suit and cap when he left his home. His father believes he had some money with him. The boy's mother died two years ago.

CARLO WILL HAVE TO BE GOOD DOG NOW

Here's Carlo, Malden's bad little dog, and his pretty little mistress, Elise Mattson, of No. 1168 Salem street. Carlo is out on parole after his "arrest" by Patrolman Harry Shorey for "disturbing the peace." His young owner has promised to see that Carlo goes on his best behavior from now on.

GEN. HART'S ACCUSER AT DEATH'S DOOR

By FRASER EDWARDS
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1925, by Universal Service)

Washington, Sept. 21.—The dramatic action underlying the army scandal created by the grave charges against Major General William H. Hart, Quartermaster General of the Army, proceeded swiftly today when his accuser, Major General Harry L. Rogers, collapsed and lies in imminent danger of death.

General Rogers is so critically ill that all visitors have been forbidden to see him. The acute affection of the heart from which he has suffered for some time, has been aggravated by a heavy cold and the strain and excitement due too the approaching climax of his three-years' fight for exoneration.

Since filing charges with the War Department accusing General Hart of "maliciously, selfishly and disloyally" plotting to prevent his reappointment as quartermaster general and to procure his own appointment, General Rogers has been unable to discuss his case or the evidence which it took him three years to gather.

HOPES FOR VINDICATION.

From his bed, over a private telephone line, he made the following brief statement to the Universal Service today:

"The case is submitted. I hope for vindication of the things that have been said against me through the proof I have gathered. That is all I can do."

It appeared doubtful today if officials of the inspector general's department of the army would be able to question Gen. Rogers in the investigation of his charges. The least undue strain or excitement, it was explained by a nurse might bring about his instant death.

The scandal created by General Rogers' accusations threatens to cost General Hart his official life when his present term expires next August, a high army official said today.

MRS. DEAN'S CHARGES.

Further evidence in the case has been placed in the hands of Rogers' friends by Mrs. Teresa Howard Dean, writer under the pen-name of "The Widow" in a scandalous society weekly, whose articles attacking General Rogers are made the basis of his charges against General Hart, it was disclosed today.

Mrs. Dean, according to Rogers' friends, has furnished them with the original copy of a letter from Secretary of War Weeks replying to a telegram purporting to have been sent to him by J. C. Schemm, president of the Sherwin Publishing Company, New York City, which Mrs. Dean, in her affidavit, asserts General Hart signed.

The letter follows:

"War Department, Washington, July 14, 1923.

"Mr. J. C. Schemm, President Sherwin Publishing Company, New York City.

"Dear Mr. Shemm: I desire to acknowledge receipt of your telegram of the 13th instant, relative to the question of filling the vacancy as quartermaster general of the army upon the expeiration of the present incumbent's term of office.

"I thank you for your interest in the matter and let me assure you that this appointment will be made only after the most mature consideration as to the needs of the service.

The Schemm telegram, which Mrs. Dean alleges in her affidavit was signed by General Hart, suggested an investigation of matters in the Quartermasters Corps that would have a direct hearing on Rogers' reappointment to the office.

General Hart admitted sending the telegram, Mrs. Dean alleges. This telegram is now said to be among the private papers of Secretary Weeks in his office safe in the War Department, Mrs. Dean told the Universal Service.

FALLS 100 FEET TO DEATH

Losing his balance on a staging near the roof of the Selwyn Theatre in Park Square, which is in process of demolition, John Cox, a workman, fell 100 feet to the stage today and was killed.

He was working alone inside the theatre, according to others Cox was twenty-five years old, and single, and lived on School street, Somerville.

Medical Examiner Leary has begun an investigation. The theatre is being torn down to make room for the new Statler Hotel.

TYPHOON SWEEPS 3 SAILORS OVERBOARD

Manila, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—A typhoon, described by officers of the United States destroyers Ford and Pillsbury as the worst in their experience, swept three sailors overboard off Tsingtao, China. Two were drowned. The third, a negro, was rescued after swimming through the disturbance for forty-five minutes. The dead are, B. T. Steward and M. C. O'Cullivan, both residents of South Carolina.

BEDFORD, OIL MAN, IS DEAD

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Alfred C. Bedford, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, died today at his home in East Norwich, L. I. He was sixty-one years old.

Mr. Bedford's death was a shock to his associates, although it was known that he had been suffering with heart trouble for some time. He was in his office on Wednesday and spent Thursday and Friday in Providence, R. I., on business, returning to his country home Friday night and transacting business over his telephone on Saturday.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Dean and Alfred Clark Bedford, all of whom were with him at East Norwich when he died.

Alfred Coffin Bedford became the president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey when he was only fifty-two years of age, having climbed the ladder of success from the lowest rung. He succeeded the late John D. Archbold, who before his death had expressed a desire that Mr. Bedford follow him to the presidency.

Mr. Bedford was born in Brooklyn on November 5, 1864, and after studying abroad took a small position with a subsidiary of the Standard.

Mr. Bedford was not known to the public, but John D. Rockefeller and John D. Archbold held him in rare esteem. For years he sat with the high executives of the company at the "head table" in the lunchroom on the fifteenth floor of the Standard Oil Building at No. 26 Broadway.

He was a member of many clubs and held many foreign honors.

NO PHONE SERVICE IN PARIS FOR 2 HOURS

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Paris was without telephone or telegraph service from 11:00 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. today, the employes having ceased work to impress upon the government that their demands for increased pay must receive attention.

MAN SUICIDE AFTER SLAYING

Epsom, N. H., Sept. 21.—An old-time romance that won kindly smiles from townsfolk here has given place to tragedy.

Wracked by insomnia, tortured by the thought that it was too late to renew his schoolboy love for Mrs. Grace Bickford Snow, Sumner Hall, aged hotel proprietor, shot the woman through the head and then drowned himself in a bathtub after he had tried three times to commit suicide with an old army revolver.

Townsfolk thought that Mrs. Snow and Hall had decided to spend the rest of their lives together in an idyllic friendship that had replaced the ardor of youth. Everybody knew their story. Hall returned to this town with a comfortable fortune after being away for years. He brought his wife with him. Here he found the Grace Bickford, who had been his "girl" in schooldays, herself married.

Some ten years ago Mrs. Snow lost her husband, Mr. Hall his wife.

Now free, they resumed their old friendship, though Hall was 72 and Mrs. Snow but a year younger. They were seen together continually, picnicking, motoring, even walking over the country roads, apparently very happy.

Only a few days ago, however, Mr. Hall told friends that he did not feel well, that he did not sleep, and was worried. Finances, they knew, did not worry the wealthy man, so those who knew him best, believed his worry was the realization that his affection for Mrs. Snow had come too late.

NEGRO BURNED AT STAKE LIKE 'HUMAN TORCH'

Mississippi Mob Escapes Arrest After Pouring Oil on Blazing Victim

New Albany, Miss., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—No arrest had been made today in connection with the lynching of J. P. Ivy, negro, burned at the stake in a farming community eighteen miles from here yesterday.

Sheriff John W. Roberts, from whom the negro was taken by the mob of a thousand persons, said he did not recognize any of those in the crowd which took the negro from him.

The mob dispersed after the lynching. The victim's story that three other men were implicated with him in attacking the daughter of a farmer was discounted when the girl said Ivy alone attacked her.

Ivy was a member of a timber-cutting crew. While the lynchers were gathering, United States Senator Hubert Stephens prevailed on the mob to disperse.

After being seized Ivy was taken to the scene of the crime, where his body was covered with kerosene and he was tied to a stake. As the flames creeped up on him he confessed the crime.

Following Ivy's confession the mob released other negroes they had planned to burn to death.

Sheriff Roberts released a third suspect.

Rockefeller Cash Killing Pest in Woodwork

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—More than 10,000,000 francs donated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the restoration of the palace of Versailles will be eaten up in the destruction of a minute mushroom, observable only under the microscope, which is ravaging the woodwork of The beautiful halls and State chambers.

Government scientists have discovered a way to kill the mushroom, but it is both tedious and expensive. The method has been used successfully at the Trianon, and, with the aid of the Rockefeller fund the restoration of some of the more important sections of the interior will begin.

LURE OF STOCK TICKER RUINED TAX OFFICIAL

Aged Stockbridge Collector Confesses to Charge of Taking Town Funds

Stockbridge, Sept. 21.—The siren call of the stock ticker and the urge for easy money lured Michael Flynn, 2d, sixty-eight-year-old tax collector, to mulct this town of some $25,000, according to his friends.

The tax collector today sobbed out his confession to the board of selectmen, after he had previously admitted the thefts to investigators, and added that they had been going on for seven years.

For 34 years Flynn has been tax collector in one of the richest towns in the world, a town which in the Summer, quarters some of the best known people in America.

His integrity had been unquestioned. Though a staunch Democrat in a town which is overwhelmingly Republican, he had been re-elected year after year, though the days preceding the elections must have been torture to the man who realized well enough that if a rival were elected the shortage would be discovered immediately.

He was happily married to a wife much younger than himself, and their union was blessed by two children.

PAID NOTES.

According to his first confession, the urge to steal first came to Flynn seven years ago, when he was called upon suddenly to meet some notes. He turned the matter over and over in his mind, and then paid the notes with the town's money.

That is as far as his confession has gone, but it is believed that the man's misfortune came when he tried to make up the shortage. He tried the tickle stock market, and in a short time was in over his head. Then he spent thousands after his lost hundreds without success, until the time came when the count of the shortage totaled $25,000, and there was no hope of his making up this huge sum.

Flynn goes before the board of selectmen today to make a full breast of his defalcations, to resign, and to do whatever the board may order to expiate his crime.

COMPLICATES BOOKS.

The taxpayers whose payments are thrown into disorder by the word of the thefts include:

Mrs. Oscar Isaigi, Beacon street, Boston; Miss Mary Aspinwall Tappan, Beacon street, Boston; Dr. William Norton, Bullard, Marlboro street, Boston; Newton Mackintosh, artist, of Lexington; Philip Ainsworth Means, archaeologist, Beacon street, Boston; Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, No. 12 Arlington street, Boston; Dr. Arthur M. Walker of Philadelphia, formerly connected with the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston; Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, widow of the former Ambassador to the Court of St. James; Norman H. Davis, former Assistant Secretary of State; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sedgwick of Boston; Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad; Mr. and Mrs. Henry White, Mr. White was former Ambassador to France and Italy. Mrs. White whose property here is valued at $320,000, is the largest taxpayer of the town.

DAWES' NIECE NEAR DEATH BY POISON

Said to Have Exclaimed "She Was Going to End It All"

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 21.—Mrs. C. W. Coleman, said to be a niece of Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, was reported dying in Grady hospital here today as a result of poisoning.

Hospital authorities said the woman drank a glass of water containing a quantity of strychnine at the apartment of Mrs. Essie Eubanks, a friend, in the Majestic Club here.

Mrs. Eubanks told police that just before drinking the poison Mrs. Coleman remarked that she was "going to end it all."

Mrs. Coeman came here from Cincinnati to visit friends. She was formerly Miss Louise Dawes before her marriage.

Cloudy teeth are not naturally "off color"—simply dulled with a dingy film

Restore your teeth to dazzling whiteness, your gums to healthy firmness this remarkable new way that dental authorities urge . . . send coupon for 10-day test . . . note the amazing difference in your teeth

BELIEVING your teeth are naturally dull is a great mistake. Science has proved otherwise. Permitting your teeth to be other than clear and beautiful is an injustice to yourself.

Largely on dental advice, millions are now multiplying the beauty of their smiles. New methods of tooth cleaning and gum care have been found.

In a few days you can work wonders with your teeth. Can give them whiteness and clearness that amaze. But not with ordinary brushing. Just send the coupon and a 10-day supply of the correct way will be sent.

Dental science now traces scores of tooth and gum troubles to a germ-laden film that forms on your teeth.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it . . . a slippery, viscous coating.

That film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. And that is why your teeth look "off color" and dingy.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack and your teeth open to decay. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea.

Mere brushing won't do

Ordinary dentifrices and cleansing won't fight film successfully. Feel for it now with your tongue. Note how your present cleansing method is failing in its duty.

Now new methods are being used. A dentifrice called Pepsodent—different in formula, action and effect from any other known.

Largely on dental advice the world has turned to this method.

It removes that film. And Firms the Gums

It accomplishes two important things at once: Removes that film, then firms the gums.

A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt.

Send the coupon. Clip it now before you forget.

ONE JUDGE FOR COLEMAN CASE

A single justice will hear the bill in equity brought by Boston taxpayers to restrain the city for paying more money to J. C. Coleman & Sons Co. in connection with work at Columbus Park, South Boston, so the full bench of the Supreme Court overruled today the city's demurrer.

The demurrer was filed several weeks ago after Francis A. Morse and other taxpayers in their bill, had claimed the contracting company had been overpaid more than $200,000 for filling in the new playground and asked that the contractors return the overpayment.

In its ruling today the full bench set forth that the bill of the plaintiffs is sufficient on its face to warrant judicial inquiry and that further action is to be taken before a single justice.

In the taxpayers' bill it is alleged the city has paid the Coleman company $235,850 for 351,500 cubic yards of filling the company claims to have furnished.

The actual measurements of the filling and the loam furnished by Coleman Bros., made at the request of the Finance Commission, are set forth as ranging only between 121,000 and 172,000 cubic yards placed in permanent position.

It is alleged the contracting company has been overpaid $200,000 and it is asked that this alleged overpayment be demanded back.

A. R. STONE QUITS CO-OPERATIVE BANK

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Co-operative Trust Company, this city's first bank, today announced the resignation as first vice-president-in-charge of A. R. Stone, nephew and protege of the late Warren S. Stone, the bank's founder.

Helen Varick Boswell, active among Republican women organizations and another personal selection of Mr. Stone, also has resigned as a vice-president, the statement said.

BROUGHT RELIEF AFTER 2 YEARS SUFFERING

BY USING TANLAC

"The makers of Tanlac will always have my warmest thanks, for I don't consider it any exaggeration to say I owe my life and present good health to Tanlac," is the striking statement of Andrew Groschner, fireman.

"Words simply can't express the misery I endured for 2 years from indigestion. At times gas pains would catch me around the heart and almost cut off my breath. These awful pains would last two and three hours. My nerves were all unstrung. I slept poorly and got in such a bad way that days seemed to be shortening rapidly.

"I tried everything, but disappointment was my only reward until I began taking Tanlac. I have been taking Tanlac off and on for a year now and feel so different that there's no room for comparison. I eat good and sleep good and feel that Tanlac has given me a new lease on life."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute.

Daniel Pope Spent His Life Seeking Precious Stones in South Africa

The final chapter in the tragic struggle of a young Irishman to wrest a fortune from the diamond and gold fields of South Africa, was written in Newton, today, when the Salvation Army turned over to Mrs. Martha O'Halloran of No. 149 California street, the effects of her brother, Daniel Pope.

An honor medal from the British government for services during the World War—a few discharge papers from the British service—a pipe and several valueless odds and ends—these instead of the fortune he had dreamed of for years, were all that Daniel Pope left behind, when he was fatally stricken in South Africa, almost eighteen months ago.

For more than a year the Salvation Army in two continents have been searching for the relatives of Daniel Pope, that they might tell his family of his end.

When Pope died in a Pretoria hospital, he left little behind to throw light on his family connections. There was one letter with a Newton postmark, signed by "Martha and Mary," apparently his sisters. The names of the sisters were not given, but it was the clue on which the Salvation Army authorities started to work.

The "Lost Persons" bureau of the Salvation Army in Boston was notified and the letter from the sisters was forwarded here. For months the search was carried on in Boston and Newton by Commandant Georgi Johnson of the Army.

The latest Newton street directory finally gave a clue and the search which extended half way around the world was at an end.

SAKLATVALA INCIDENT HAS SEQUEL IN ITALY

Rome, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Saklatvala incident has an Italian counterpart, according to reports in Communist circles. These reports are to the effect that the Italian government has denied permission for Giuseppe Srebrnic to leave the country as a member of the delegation to the Interparliamentary Union Conference in Washington. Srebrnic, thirty-six years old and a native of the Gorizia District, is one of the most ardent Communists in the Chamber of Deputies.

MILLIONAIRES' ESTATES THREATENED BY FIRE

Greenwich, Ct., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Fire early today destroyed the Palmer cider mill here, burned to death two horses and threatened the estates of several prominent residents. The damage was estimated at $50,000.

Among the estates threatened were those of Eugene Widemann, Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Ross Turner, A. Garfield Learned, artist, and Myron I. Borg, banker. A short circuit is believed to have caused the fire.

SICK MOTHER NOT TOLD TWO SONS ARE DEAD

Hospital Attaches Keeping News From Woman Just Operated Upon

Mrs. Ella Haley, recovering from a serious surgical operation today, first asked for her two sons, unconscious of the fact that both her boys were dead across the street from her, the victims of gas poisoning.

Nurses and physicians all feared to tell the woman the sad news, realizing that it might mean her own death. She was operated on at the Homeopathic Hospital, while her sons had died in the City Hospital, only a stone's throw away.

WERE KEEPING HOUSE.

While their mother was in the hospital the boys had been keeping house themselves in the basement apartment at No. 418 Massachusetts avenue.

Always their mother had attended to the household details, even heating the water for their baths. Accordingly, they knew nothing about the gas heater and this caused their deaths.

They had turned on the gas in the heater without lighting both sets of burners and the room in which they were found was flooded with the fumes.

FOUND BY UNCLE.

When they did not pay their daily visit to their mother, their uncle, John Clattenburg, went seeking them, and after he had tried the door looked through the transom and saw the unconscious bodies.

John, fourteen years old, was dead when the hospital was reached, while George, seventeen, outlived him by a few hours.

WARD 5 MURPHY CLUB MEETS THIS EVENING

A meeting of the Ward 5 John J. Murphy Club of Somerville will be held this evening at the office of Arthur F. McCarthy, Magoun Square Building, at 8. Among the speakers will be Democratic candidate for Mayor John J. Murphy, and the aldermanic and school committee candidates from Ward 5. As the club is composed of active workers in the Democratic cause, an overflow meeting is expected. Meetings of the club will be held every Monday evening.

3 KILLED, 9 INJURED, BY SIMLA BOMB OUTRAGE

London, Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—Three persons have been killed and nine injured in a bomb outrage at Simla, according to dispatches received here today. Most of the victims of the bomb were soldiers. Full details of the attack are lacking but it is believed it is due to the extremists movement which has been gaining foot in Simla and vicinity, increased by trade depression.

TRICK CYCLIST DEAD AS RESULT OF CRASH

Newport Still Attracts Many Leaders of Elite

Betty Alden

NEWPORTERS OF THE ELITE CONTINUE to be seen along its famous thoroughfares, in the village-like intimacy of teeming Thames street, as well as in the more rarified atmosphere pertaining to Bellevue avenue and the Hill. William Vincent Astor appeared not so long ago in Thames street escorted by his recently imported police dog (Beechwood's burglar alarm o'nights) and tooling a smart motor.

MISS MABEL GERRY, doing a bit o' shopping along the same narrow street, was a vision in Copenhagen blue. She, too, was effectively escorted, but by her fiance, Saxham Drury. Mr. Drury and Miss Gerry, each entirely at home in various world capitals—London's Regent street or the Rue de la Paix of Paris—make a decidedly handsome couple, the cynosure of all eyes as they move about Newport.

THOMAS POWERS, Newport's Beau Brummel extraordinary, with apartments at the Muenchinger-King (Newport's internationally-known hostelry) is about to end his season at the City-by-the-Sea and betake himself to his Autumn haunt, Virginia Hot Springs. The Virginia Springs, by the way, will claim many a Newporter of eminence in the near future.

MR. POWERS, with a Winter habitat in Gotham's Park avenue, membership in various smart Metropolitan clubs, and endowed with a plethora of this world's goods, moves blithely with the seasons as they call society's cohorts up and down the country. Generously philanthropic, too, every local charity may dip into the genial Mr. Powers' purse, with results most satisfactory.

SPEAKING OF NEWPORT, naturally one mentions the clans of Vanderbilt. General Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vanderbilt were in Newport not long since as guests of Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister, Mrs. Ogden Goelet at Ochre Court villa. Nearby, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney has been staying with her mother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at The Breakers.

MISS CONSUELO VANDERBILT came back to Beachmound from New York, where she was honor guests of Miss Ellin Mackay, daughter of Clarence Mackay. Miss Vanderbilt, in the absence of her fiance, Earl Smith, is generally escorted about by his younger brother, Sidney A. Smith, to church and all about Newport's socially famous spots.

EVER SINCE the Embassy Club, in Bath street opened its hospitable doors and flourished under Mrs. Richard T. Wilson's gracious support, Newport's visiting and resident celebrities flocked thereto, notably the Count and Countess Alfonso B. Villa, Princess Francesca Ruspiglioso, Mrs. Joseph Washington Frazer, Mrs. Daniel A. de Menocal and Mrs. Charles L. Harding.

THE HARDINGS, by the way, are devoted to life aboard their yacht Wildfire, of the New York and Eastern Yacht Clubs. Recently they did a short cruise to Boston and return on the handsome craft.

WILLIAM GROSVENOR has been entertaining A. C. Smith of Providence at Phinney House on Ruggles avenue. Mrs. Grosvenor, some may recall, was Miss Mary Burnett, of the Southboro family bearing that deservedly distinguished name.

MISS THEODORA HOLLANDER, daughter of Mrs. Clark Hollander and member of the Junior League, is to be an Autumn bride. Her fiance is Harry Boit Freeman, Yale, 1919. The wedding day is October 10.

BABSON SEES BUSINESS AS HEALTHIER

Business will be healthier and more stabilized during the next few years without violent booms and depressions, Roger W. Babson declared today in the opening address of the twelfth annual national business conference at Wellesley.

"The great profits and the violent losses of the past twenty years will not again be evident for some time to come," he said. "This means that the next few years will not offer much opportunity to the speculator or any other man who is trying to get something for nothing.

"Business, however, will be healthier, more stabilized and more satisfactory for those who are willing to render real service and give a dollar's value in commodities and labor for every dollar received.

"I believe there will be sufficient funds during the next few months for all legitimate enterprises. This means there should still be a good market for bonds. Most stocks, however, seem pretty high and I expect to see lower prices."

NORTH ANDOVER GIRL MISSING

North Andover, Sept. 21.—Police of North Andover and surrounding towns and cities are today searching for Mary Elizabeth Handly, eighteen, of No. 6 Second street, reported by her parents as missing from home since last Tuesday. According to the girl's parents, she left home last week to go riding with Perley Richards, twenty-eight, of Salem, N. H.

An investigation at Salem last night revealed the fact that Perley had not been seen since the date of the girl's disappearance.

Mrs. Eulah Handly, the mother of the missing girl, informed the police that her daughter had recently returned to her home from a convent. Some time ago she had become acquainted with Perley and on Tuesday he appeared in a borrowed automobile asking if she cared to go for a ride. The girl accepted.

Other investigations in nearby towns today proved that the couple had not been seen, nor were there records to show that they had been married, as was at first feared by the girl's parents.

American's Lead in News Field Increases

MEN may come and men may go, but the Boston Evening American continues to record their activities IN ADVANCE OF ITS COMPETITORS.

In accordance with its policy of "News While It Is News," the Boston Evening American presents to its readers events AS THEY HAPPEN.

Through its tremendous news-gathering resources, this newspaper is able to obtain first-hand reports of happenings and with its high-speed mechanical facilities to put them before the public in short order.

The record of the past week testifies that the Boston Evening American is still leading the field in presenting "BIG NEWS FIRST:"

Sept. 16.—First story of the crusade against the Worcester drug ring. On the same day the Boston Evening American beat its competitors with the story of how Olivia Ames, society girl wrecked her automobile to avoid striking a train at Prides Crossing.

Sept. 17.—An exclusive story on Henry Ford's visit to Boston on his way from Maine to Wayland, and a beat on armed Quincy thugs eluding a lone officer. On the same day the Boston Evening American presented another exclusive story on the resignation from the People's Symphony Orchestra of Emil Mollenhauer, the conductor, and beat its competitors on the mysterious shooting of Richmond Clark, Dedham contractor, together with the story of Swampscott jewel thieves, the palatial yacht Conejo held as a rum runner, and a mother and baby hurt in a porch collapse in Dorchester.

Sept 18.—The Boston Evening American ran an exclusive story on Henry Ford's interest in Philip Thorpe, violin playing lifer at State's Prison. Also this paper beat its competitors with the story of Dr. Emily C. McLeod, confined to Charles Street Jail for refusing to pay a plumber's bill; thugs binding a victim and looting an A. & P. store in West Somerville; the capture of Dennis Britt, pal of Johnny Troy, Worcester thug, and the surrender of Joseph Silipo of Hingham, alleged murderer. Last but not least, on the same day the Boston Evening American ran an exclusive story on the Bannerman divorce suit in Cambridge.

Sept. 19.—An exclusive story on the abduction of Dorothy Dudley, Brockton heiress, and another exclusive on the spiriting away of two children from South Weymouth, later to be found by the Boston Evening American. Also a beat on the release of Dr. McLeod from jail when an aged man paid her plumber's bill.

GERMANY DEPORTS AMERICAN KLANSMAN

Berlin, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Germany's "Fiery Cross" episode has practically come to an end with the deportation of Gotthard Stroschein, former Lutheran minister and naturalized American, one of the founders of the "Knights," aff order similar to the Ku Klux Klan.

Given six days to get out of the country, he left today for Warsaw. After visiting relatives in the Polish capital he plans to return to America. Otto Stroschein, father of Gotthard, proved his German citizenship and was released.

THREE AUTOISTS HURT IN HEAD-ON CRASH

Milford, Ct., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Three autoists were injured here today, two of them seriously, when two machines collided head-on. Those taken to the Milford Hospital were, Mrs. Robert Laucar of Carbondale, Pa., and Miss Sarah Lubchansky of New London, Ct., seriously injured, and Mr. Laucar, whose injuries were not serious.

The Laucar car was in collision with a machine operated by Abraham J. Lancher of Brookline, Mass., who was placed under arrest.

DELAY MAY BE FATAL IN AUTO COMPETITION

Now Is the Time to Send in Letters to Boston Evening American

By PACKARD BUICK ESSEX.

In connection with the Boston Evening American's offer to sell three automobiles for 2 cents apiece, I am asked a strange question by a reader who signs himself "Brockton."

"I should like to know," writes "Brockton," "if you would not just as soon send a check, in place of one of the cars, for the benefit of those of us who need money much more than we need automobiles.

"I have submitted a letter in the 'Why I like the Boston Evening American' competition, which you will find before you get to the bottom of the mail bags, but would like to see this question answered in the paper."

It will not take long to answer "Brockton's" inquiry, the answer being that when he has been acclaimed one of the three winners in this contest, if he shall be a winner, and when he has paid 2 cents for his Packard, or Buick, or Essex, the car will be his, to do as he likes with it.

Does he prefer money? Let him sell his new car! It will not be a "used" car, remember, but a brand new one, fresh from the local representative of the automobile company.

Strange as it may appear to some, there are people in this world who would prefer cash to an automobile. The Editor of the Evening American appreciates this and can see nothing to prevent one of the winners speedily turning his new car into cash.

And now, having smoothed away Mr. Brockton's perplexities, I have a question of my own to ask.

When am I going to hear from YOU?

You who read these lines, and have not yet written a letter, on "Why I Like the Boston Evening American."

There are three new automobiles here, a Packard sedan, a Buick sedan, and an Essex coach.

The Evening American is going to sell them—and that before very long—for 2 cents apiece!

The writer of the most helpful letter we receive, on the subject, "Why I Like the Boston Evening American," will have his (or her) choice of these cars.

The next car goes to the writer of the letter deemed second best. Third car, to the writer of the letter the Board of Judges calls next in merit.

Please be quick! The Editor tells me he has another fine contest under consideration, and that he will want space for it. Hurry along your letters.

Write not more than 250 words.

Write on one side of thepaper only. Place your own name and address in the upper left-hand corner of your manuscript. Letters may be printed, typewritten, pencilled or pen-and-inked, but must be readable in order to stand a chance in so large a competition.

Address your letter to "Mr. Packard Buick Essex," in care of the Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

And send no money. In this competition only the winners are to pay. They will pay 2 cents each for a $2,844 Packard, a Buick worth $1,705.50 or a fully equipped Essex coach, valued at $912.90.

Premier Presentation of the Franco-American Modes

The formal exhibition of the Franco-American modes for the Autumn and Winter will be shown in our drawing-rooms, today and following days.

Paris has yielded the finest flowers of her salons for this occasion. It is the crowning hour in Boston, of the art of the couturier.

The complete assemblage of wardrobe for the gentlewoman for the drawing-room, street and field will be given a presentation on mannequins noted for grace and intimacy with artistic attire.

Many of the model garments, ready-to-don, will be placed on sale immediately after the exhibit. The new rendition of the Hickson Tailleur will also be available at this time.

MORE DOLLAR DAN'S LUCKY BILLS TODAY

Everybody Is Saving Ones in the Hope of Winning

The poor, downtrodden Dollar Bill—the Raggedy Ann of moneydom—has come into its own at last and is having its first vacation since that Christmas Eve when the Hessians looked up at Trenton from their steins and murmured:

"Well if it ain't dem old George!"

Everybody's saving dollar bills and the weary round of circulation is being taken up by the Two-Spots, from which the jinx now has been almost thoroughly washed.

Dollar Dan has done the trick for Uncle Sam—this removing of the age-old jinx on Deuces—and by the time Dollar Dan gets through with his stunt, the Twos will be as innocent of a jinx as a worm is of hips.

Seventeen new numbers a day are offered for the eagle eyes of Boston Evening American readers, and in return for the lucky numbers, the bill holder gets $50 or $20 or $10 in Twos, according to the grade of luck they play around with.

Everybody has the same chance, whether he or she lives in the heart of Boston or on the outskirts of Jackman, Me., which is so near out of the U. S. A. that a sneeze would carry you over into Canada for a touchdown.

Nice fresh numbers today!

RUM CHASER RESCUES TWO ADRIFT IN DORY

Two fishermen, Frank McIntyre, of No. 909 Crescent street, Brockton, and Carl Harris of Avon are praising the personnel of a rum chaser which postponed its trip to Rum Row sufficiently long to rescue the castaways and put them on a shore-bound boat.

A sudden squall caught the dory in which the two were fishing five miles off Scituate and drove her sixteen miles off shore when she was picked up by a rum chaser commanded by Captain Frank McIntyre of the coast guard.

13 IN COURT FOR SUNDAY GAMING

Revere, Sept. 21.—Thirteen men, arrested at the Revere House garage on Ocean avenue were arraigned in Chelsea court today on charges of being present where gaming was being conducted on the Lord's Day. It is alleged that a crap game was being held in the garage when a squad of police, headed by Sergeants John L. Blythe and Charles O. Walton, entered.

UNCLE SAM URGED TO HAVE OWN TELEGRAPH

Washington, Sept. 20.—Officials of the Budget Bureau have under consideration a suggestion that Congress be asked to authorize the establishment of a Federal telegraph message system.

A voluntary organization in which ten agencies of the government have employed the army and navy communication systems already has been tried out, and has been found satisfactory.

FOUR HURT ON MOHAWK TRAIL

Springfield, Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—Four persons were injured, two seriously, when an automobile driven by R. C. Farnsworth, No. 39 Dewey street, Laconia, N. H., skidded from the road and crashed into a fence on the Mohawk Trail at Charlemont, near North Adams, early today.

Farnsworth was crushed against the steering wheel, and, according to hospital advices, is suffering from internal injuries of a serious nature. Charles Frizzell, No. 1 Park street, Norwalk, Ct., another occupant of the car, was thrown out and picked up by passersby thirty feet from the wrecked machine.

FIVE GOVERNORS PRESENT AT EXPOSITION

Executives of Four Other States Guests of Fuller at Luncheon

Springfield, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Governors of five States and official representatives of several others attended Governors' Day at the Eastern States Exposition today and were guests of Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts at a luncheon at noon. The other executives were Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, Governor Robert P. Robinson of Delaware, Governor Vinnant of New Hampshire.

One of the features of the day was the dedication of the new building of the Eastern States League, costing $100,000, the gift of Horace A. Moses of this city, founder of the league. The building is devoted to the work of the Junior Achievement Bureau and the training of leaders in that work. It was accepted by Henry D. Sharpe of Providence, R. I., vice-president of the league, who pointed out the great need of better education of the young, "not in book learning so much as in some practical industrial or agriculturul direction for the purpose of instilling habits of industry and tastes that will insure their entrance into real pursuits immediately on leaving school."

The opening was featured by a shattering of all previous attendance records, the official count showing that 31,226 persons passed through the gates.

Many of the visiting motorists seemed unaware the management has set aside a mammoth automobile camp, with accommodations for 10,000 cars, free of charge on the island. There motorists may camp for the entire week without cost.

TRY TO SEE ALL.

The throngs did their best to visit impartially every center of interest, but it was impossible to see more than a small part of the great show in a single afternoon.

The Massachusetts and State of Maine buildings, with their textile exhibits, were extremely popular. Thousands of persons spent their time in the vicinity of Camp Vail, the Mohawk village, the new Junior Achievement hall and the 17 divisional centers in which boys and girls are interested.

EXPOSE DRIVES DRUG RING FROM WORCESTER

Worcester, Sept. 21.—The recent expose of drug-ring activities in this city has sent scores of drug peddlers and addicts scurrying to other parts, The newspaper "barrage" has sounded a warning to all that their presence is no longer wanted in the community. As a result sergeant Joseph Murphy of the liquor squad, who has been leading the drive on the drug-rings, said today that the city was practically cleaned of "dopesters" and vendors.

ACCIDENTAL PISTOL SHOT CAUSES DEATH

Pembroke, Sept. 21.—As a result of shooting himself accidentally Friday afternoon while cleaning a pistol, Wendell O. Howard of North Pembroke is dead. The pistol was one which he used as a special police officer. He was about fifty-three years of age. He leaves his wife and a daughter.

HUB WOMAN UNHURT IN LEAP FROM FIRE

South Lyndeboro, N. H., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Harry Hartshorn, of Boston, was unhurt when she leaped from the second story window as fire razed the centuryold 22-room farm house of her father-in-law, David Hartshorn.

Harry Hartshorn, his father and mother, escaped by the stairway. The building was a landmark, and was well patronized by Summer boarders for many years.

GIRL BLINDED BY ONION CUTS THUMB

Brockton, Sept. 21.—Sixteen-year-old Gertrude O'Leary of Perkins place nearly cut off her thumb when her eyes became so filled with tears from peeling onions that she could not follow the course of the knife. The sharpened steel slipped off an onion and cut a gash in Gertrude's thumb that required nine stitches to close up.

EDWARD P. BARRY IS HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry, who was operated upon Saturday at the Emerson Hospital, Jamaica Plain, for an infection which resulted from the bite of a poisonous insect, returned to his home, No. 32 Sigourney street, Jamaica Plain. He will be able to resume his law practice, it is thought, by the end of the week.

DRYS CONSIDER COMPROMISE ON BEER

Success of Prohibition Makes Acceptance of Brewers' Offer Debatable

Washington, Sept. 21.—Dry leaders, their faith in prohibition badly shaken by the boomerang report of the investigating committee of the Federal Council of Churches, are seriously considering a compromise suggested by the brewers of America.

The brewers offer to assist in every way in the enforcement of prohibition against whiskey and hard liquors, if they are allowed to brew beer of a reasonable alcoholic content.

Even Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, has not turned down the suggestion, as he undoubtedly would have turned it down a short time ago.

"The brewers will have to establish confidence in the minds of the people that they are in earnest about this thing by exerting their influence to enforce prohibition," he said.

He admitted that the Anti-Saloon League is open to compromise, adding that the brewers had made several suggestions since the Volstead regime came into being, but they have gone much farther in their present offer than ever before.

SECOND WIFE DIES VIOLENTLY

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The body of Mrs. Robert E. Richardson, Jr., was found in her apartment here today after her husband, suffering from a self-inflicted bullet wound, had told hospital attendants of her death.

Richardson's first wife was Mrs. Thelma Hamm Richardson, for whose murder about two years ago Thomas Pollard, real estate man, was tried and acquitted.

Richardson said he had quarreled with his wife Saturday after he had found the woman's first husband in the apartment.

He declared he and the man fought and he wounded the first husband with a knife. He then struck his wife several times and left the apartment. He walked the street all Saturday night and yesterday, and early today shot himself through the body. Richardson declared his wife threatened to take poison. A coroner's jury will determine the cause of her death.

Mrs. Richardson's first husband is named Birdsong. The extent of his injuries was not determined.

NATTY CHINESE IN UNCLE SAM'S NET

Eighteen Suspected of Sneaking Across the United States Borders

Eighteen of the twenty-one Chinamen captured in the Saturday night tong raids in Chinatown, were taken to the Federal Building today by Immigration Service inspectors for arraignment on the charge of being unlawfully in the country.

Nearly the entire day was consumed in the Federal Attorney's office in writing complaints and preparing for prosecution, and it was late in the day before the Oriental aliens were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney, who held them all in $2,500 bail for a hearing.

The defendants in today's group were a different type from the eighteen arraigned last week, being all natty appearing young immigrants and restaurant workers. In the earlier group nearly all were seamen who had deserted from the Chinese crews of ships from the Orient.

Immigration Service inspectors said that today's batch were all smuggled over the Canadian and Mexican borders, and are a much more intelligent type. Of the twenty-one taken in Saturday's raid only three were able to prove that they were legally in the country.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT WORLD'S DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

The news flashes come today from the editorial rooms of the Boston Evening American over WNAC at 11:30 A. M., 1:30 P. M. and 5:00 P. M. The baseball results are on the air at 7:30 P. M.

OVER WNAC TONIGHT

Monday evening starts auspiciously at Station WNAC, when at 6:30 p. m. Ray Stewartson and his Symphonic Jazz Orchestra will play its first dinner dance for this season from this station. The excellent program given by the same orchestra last Saturday evening direct from the Russian Amber Room of P. D. Cook's made a decided hit with the radi caudience.

CHORUS TO SING.

The 8 p. m. program from WNAC will be a varied musical program by the Shepard Stores' Chorus, under the direction of Minnie Fowler Scott. This chorus of 35 voices has often been heard in morning programs, but this is the first evening program this season. Mildred Bastian will be accompanist and Herbert Keefe, violinist. The program has been well balanced with group and solo numbers, and also with a number of instrumental solos.

Following the Shepard Chorus at 9 p. m., Lewis Dunham of the staff of WNAC will give another of the greatly appreciated WNAC organ recitals, using the organ of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul. Mr. Dunham has prepared a program which will be an inspiration to lovers of organ music, and his ability to play this instrument with beauty and skill has been demonstrated in his previous recitals.

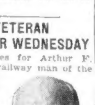
GERMAN RADIO IS REGULATED

Some of the German radio regulations in force would appear rather severe to fans of the States. For instance, outdoor receiving aerials must not interfere with a neighbor's views in fact they should be so placed as to be invisible if possible. Aerials must be of standard materials and of regulation sizes, factors of safety must be figured so there will be no danger from contraction from cold, or loading from wind or ice to cause sagging or breaking.

The safety factor is three. Additional loading is assumed in the direction of gravity; it is equal to 180 lbs. into the square root of d, where d is the external diameter in millimeters. No joints or knots are permitted in aerials or guy wires. The grounding of all metal parts is required and if wooden supports are used, tightening conductors must be installed. Antennas must not cross within 2 metres of or be parallel when less than five meters distant.

Some precautions are similar to modern practice here, but most of the above are believed excessive. One commentator exclaimed: "Thank Goodness the Germans didn't win the war," after reading the list of radio don'ts.

WILL BURY VETERAN "L" WORKER WEDNESDAY



A. F. Averill.

Funeral services for Arthur F. Averill, veteran railway man of the L, who died Sunday morning at his home, No. 47 Gibson street, Dorchester, following a brief illness, will be held Wednesday afternoon at Trinity Church, Copley square, Boston, at 2 o'clock. He was seventy-four and known to thousands throughout the city.

Born in Boston, Mr. Averill went to work for the L at the age of nineteen. He left after five years, but returned again in 1880. He remained with them until 1922, when he was pensioned. At the time of his retirement he was an instructor motorman.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Catherine Averill, he leaves six sons and four daughters. They are: Mrs. Katherine Averill Eppard, the Misses Helen C., Grace, Alice and Helen Averill, Archie M., Dexter S., Clarfield, Girwood L., Ellsworth and Winthrop Averill, all of Dorchester.

LARGEST CARILLON PEALS IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The world's largest carillon, the gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to the Park Avenue Baptist Church in memory of his mother, Laura Spelman Rockefeller, has begun pealing.

With all fifty-three bells in action for the first time the notes ring down the ravine of apartment houses that line the avenue. Motor traffic slackened. Knots of people gathered to listen for many blocks. The program started with "Abide With Me" and concluded with "America."

APPLE PICKER INJURES SPINE IN 20-FOOT FALL

Worcester, Sept. 21.—While picking apples at his home on Wells avenue, Joseph Monfreda fell from the tree, a distance of twenty feet. His spine was fractured. Physicians at Worcester City Hospital say he has little chance to live.

This popular group of symphonic jazz musicians is playing tonight at 6:30 P. M. over Station WNAC.

RADIO LOG FROM 9XN

What is daily proving tremendous strides in the advancement of radio broadcast and reception is shown by the remarkable results produced and obtained by Chief Radio Operator Paul J. McGee of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition while within eleven degrees of the North Pole and the Zenith Arctic Experimental Station, 9XN, located at Arlington Heights, Ill. Following are excerpts taken from the log of Station 9XN and messages received from Commander McDonald on board the SS. Peary, now located at Etah, Greenland.

We are consistently working Australia and New Zealand every night. We will broadcast a special concert of music and songs by the Eskimos Sunday, August 30.

(Signed) McDONALD.

Following are the excerpts from Station 9XN's log:

At 3:10 A. M., August 23, 9XN communicated with A3EF, Spray street, Elwood, Melbourne, Australia.

At 4 A. M. 9XN talked to 2YI, New Zealand, and also 3AN of Australia, also MM of Queensland, Australia. Signals loud enough to copy on loud speaker.

At 4:15 A. M. heard 2TI', New Zealand, and at 4:17 A. M. heard 2XA, New Zealand. At 4:21 A. M. heard 1AX New Zealand. Lieutenant Schnell, with Station NRRL, of the fleet and aboard the U. S. S. Seattle, at 4:21 A. M. were louder than they have ever been heard before. Quotations (first operator at 9XN) gives him a rating of r8 at least. At 5 A. M. worked 4AS, New Zealand, who gave his address as Auckland, New Zealand, and also gave a very good report of our signals as r-8. At this time it was day light in Arlington Heights and the sun had been shining for an hour.

RUSSIAN VIOLINIST JOINS DARTMOUTH STAFF

Hanover, Sept. 21.—Sergei Korguyeff, eminent Russian violinist, has recently been elected as visiting lecturer in music by the Dartmouth College Board of Trustees. He has been given the rank of assistant professor for this year. He formerly was leader of the orchestra of the late Czar, and is on a leave of absences from the University of Petrograd.

He comes to Dartmouth to keep a promise which he made several years ago, stating he would spend a year there.

He is a pupil of Leopold Auer and has played with some of the best men of the musical world, including Padewewski and Rubinstein and Davidoff.

POWERFUL STATION IN ENGLAND OPENED

The new high-power station (5XX) of the British Broadcasting Company, recently inaugurated at Daventry, Northamptonshire, will replace the one at Chelmsford as a high power station, taking over the call sign 5XX.

The power of the new station is 25 kilowatts and its wave length is 1,600 meters. The crystal range, it is estimated, will cover a population of about 22,000,000 persons. Single tube sets should receive Daventry programs within a radius of 150 to 200 miles according to conditions, while the multitube sets should be able to receive them anywhere in England.

The Broadcasting Company also intends to erect a big receiving station in Kent. By September, 10 programs will be sent by the Radio Corporation of America, American programs are expected to be broadcasted from Daventry.

FRESH CIVIL WAR NOW THREATENING CHINA

London, Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—China's hopes for customs revisions and the end of extra-territoriality may vanish in the smoke of another civil war, according to cable dispatches received here today.

Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang, "the Christian General," and Chang Tso-Lin, the war lord of Manchuria, are at the point of war, according to confidential information received from Tokio through the Japanese foreign office.

FARMER, 50, USES POISON TO END LIFE

Pembrook, N. H., Sept. 21.—Ira Kimball, fifty years old, a farmer, committed suicide by poison in his home here.

The body was discovered by his wife when she went to Kimball's room early today. He was said to have had financial troubles.

RADIO CHAT—STATION WNAC THE SHEPARD STORES

By Martha Lee

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Every now and then a member writes for advice regarding diets suitable for some special illness. Usually I refer all these good friends to their family physician as I'm by no means qualified to have M. D. after my name or to give professional advice. However, there are, of course, certain simple diet principles that every cooking teacher is familiar with, and in answer to letters received during the past week I'm very glad to give some general suggestions.

The first is regarding the diet for a person troubled with rheumatism. Tea, coffee and alcohol in any form must be avoided. Beef is taboo. Lamb and chicken are permissable. Vegetables are excellent and they, with fresh fruit, milk, eggs and cereal should form the chief part of the diet. Meals should be eaten regularly and plenty of time taken for mastication.

Don't indulge in evening lunches, with the possible exception of a cup of hot milk or cocoa. Live out of doors as much as possible and exercise moderately. Cold water baths are usually excellent.

DIABETIC DIET.

The other request for a special diet comes from a Brockton member who has a tendency to diabetes, the aim for a suggested general diet. Diabetics require more frequent meals than normal people. At least the three regular meals with several lunches in between.

One of our best diabetes authorities suggests a cup of coffee with cream and sugar for breakfast if possible, before arising. For breakfast any of the following fruits are allowed: Sour apples, apricot, blackberries, currants, gooseberries, grapefruit, lemons, oranges, peaches, plums, raspberries and strawberries. Oranges and grapefruit are especially desirable.

Between breakfast and the noon meal there should be an eggnog made with ½ cup of cream soup or a little fruit.

Dinner (and this should come in the middle of the day) should include: Meat or fish and a fat, a vegetable, a salad and a dessert. If no salad is desired, two vegetables should be served. There should be a mid-afternoon luncheon of an eggnog or a cheese sandwich.

For supper, a diabetic may have eggs, sliced cold meat or fish, cheese and a vegetable or a salad. About 9 o'clock a cup of cocoa or an eggnog or a glass of diabetic milk is suggested.

PREPARE MILK.

This diabetic milk is prepared by adding ¼ of a cup of heavy cream and a few grains of salt to two cups of cold water. Keep in the ice box, covered, for twelve hours. Then stir thoroughly, let stand for about five minutes and skim the cream off the top. Beat up the white of an egg in a glass with a fork. Add ½ cup of cold water and when the egg is dissolved add the cream which has been skimmed off the cold water and a little salt. Serve at once.

Anyone with a tendency to diabetes should keep out of doors as much as possible and take a moderate amount of exercise, although not enough to cause fatigue.

Our next inquiry comes from a little bride—one of our members who has just moved to Orange, N. J., and she asks for suggestions for simple breakfasts. Here are just a few that are appropriate right now:

NO. 1
Sliced Peaches and Cream
Graham Muffins and Honey
Coffee

NO. 2
Melon — Cereal and Cream
Buttered Toast and Marmalade
Coffee

NO. 3
Grapes — French Toast with Maple Syrup
Coffee

NO. 4
Sliced Pineapple — Broiled Bacon
Buttered Toast
Coffee

NO. 5
Grapes — Corn Fritters
Popovers
Coffee

NO. 6
Fruit Omelet — Hot Biscuits
Strawberry Jam
Coffee

Mrs. C. B. P. asks how she can prepare apples so that they have almost a glassy appearance. I think this is the method she refers to:

RECIPE NO. 1637
BAKED APPLES

6 firm red apples
1¼ cupfuls water
1 cupful sugar
3 thsps. sugar
Core and peel red apples about one-third of the way down from the stem end. Then place the apples in a deep dripping pan or casserole which has a closely fitting cover. Add with the water a thin syrup of the sugar and water, allowing it to boil for about six minutes. Pour this syrup over the apples and cover tightly.

Place in a medium oven and baste the apples frequently until they are quite tender but still whole. Remove cover and place one teaspoonful of sugar in the cavity of each apple, sprinkling sugar over the peeled surface. Then place the pan under the flame of the broiler, or in the top of a very hot oven until sugar has melted and the peeled section of the apple has become a very light delicate shade of brown. Basting once or twice during this process helps to give the apples a "varnished" appearance.

Ignatz Is Greedy and Gets Sick

The day after the Radio Editor took dinner with the Krazy Kat and Ignatz and the Officer Pup, which all you little girls and boys remember we told about last Saturday, there came a telephone message to the Radio Editor from the Doctor.

"Hello, Editor," said the Doctor.

"Hello, sir," said the Editor.

"I'm sorry to tell you that your friend Ignatz is sick," said the Doctor, "and he wants you to come and see him."

"What's the matter with him?" asked the Editor—he didn't want to go and see anybody that had the MEASLES!

"O, nothing but a bad pain in his tummy," said the Doctor, "he says that he ate too many baked beans at a party."

"Now, that's a nice way to talk!" said the Editor, "the beans he ate were some very nice ones that I gave him myself, because he didn't have anything of his own to eat—but I'll go and see the little rascal if he wants to see me."

So the Radio Editor went down to Krazy Kat's Kottage, and there, in the big guest-room bed was Ignatz. He had a hot water bottle on the baked beans, he had an ice bag on his head, and he had a mustard plaster on his back and a thermometer in his mouth. He looked miserable.

"How do?" said the Editor very cheerfully. You little girls and boys know how people talk when you are sick in bed, very, very cheerful.

Only the end of Ignatz' nose could be seen from under the ice-bag.

"I feel simply awful," said Ignatz, "this hot water bag is too hot and the ice bag is too cold and mustard plaster itches and they keep putting this thermometer into my mouth."

"What about dear old Castor?" said the Radio Editor.

"I've had that, too, said Ignatz, "and I yelled."

"Good," said the editor, "that shows that you're getting well. But what do you mean by telling the doctor that you got your pain from eating my baked beans?"

"Don't get mad," said Ignatz. "I'll tell you. A lady gave me a whole box of candy, and I ate it all up myself—and I was ashamed to tell the doctor. And now I'm sorry and I apologize. Please don't be cross to me—because I've got a pain."

"People who tell fibs generally do get pains sooner or later," said the editor, sternly, "You must never do such a thing again."

"I never, never will," said Ignatz, "and now I feel much better, because I've told the truth about being so greedy."

And this story is to show all you little girls and boys what always happens when anybody eats whole boxes of candy or tells fibs—they get pains!

CRIPPLED GIRL GETS PRIZE

Another soul-stirring story of radio has reached the Radio World's Fair, and announcement was made today by U. J. Herrmann, managing director, of the award of a special prize, a five-tube radio receiver, to Miss Jennie R. Miller, No. 119 West Seneca street, Oswego, N. Y., who, with one-tube receiver, has heard 252 stations, including KFI, Los Angeles, and is certain that in last year's (international) tests she heard 5ND, Newcastle, England, which was reported by several thousand American listeners, and also received KZKZ, Manila—real records. Her log includes KTOL, Seattle, KFAE, Pullman, Wash., KMO, Tacoma, KGW, Portland, and other stations at very long distances.

IT KEEPS ME HAPPY.

"I am just an invalid girl, being confined to my bed with spine trouble for 17 years, not being able to use my lower limbs, but God has been very good to me and has gifted me in many ways to use my hands and eyes. I spend most of the days and evenings with my radio. I have been gifted with drawing and painting everything I see from the time I was old enough to hold a pencil, and like most to draw and paint pretty girls' heads, and can paint anyone's picture who will pose for me.

"My doctor gave me a fine little radio set in June, 1924, and I have learned to be an expert radio operator. My set is on a table alongside of my bed, and not being able to sleep nights, I listen in to broadcasting stations until the wee small hours of the morning, and have had an experience that most fans do not have time for.

"I have a one-tube set built by two boys in this city and in March, 1925, tuned in to station KFI, Los Angeles, at 12:05 a. m. and listened to part of an opera, and have set the dials in the same place many times since and have received programs from that station. In April I tuned in to PWX, Havana, and enjoyed the band music which was played for some time and have received this station many times since.

MANY LETTERS

"I have many letteres from stations and artists in return for letters I have written them and these I keep as treasures. One that I prize very much is a letter from General Pershing signed in his own handwriting and another from Maude Morgan, the harpist, after hearing her golden jubilee broadcasting from WEAF in November, 1924.

"No one will ever know what it has meant to me after being shut away from the world for 17 long years and then have the whole world, one might say, brought to my bedside, and I am so grateful to the broadcasting stations and artists for all the life worth living for me. Words cannot express it.

"Radio is a blessing to shut-ins and no will never know how much good it is doing in this world.

POPULAR ANNOUNCER IS GRAHAM M'NAMEE

Graham McNamee, whose voice is the best known to radio fans throughout the country, has been crowned king of all announcers. This "man with the pleasant voice," who is on the air from WEAF, received a gold cup at the radio show in New York last week, having been chosen the most popular announcer for 1925.

"Big Brother" Bob Emery of WEEI, Boston, came in 14th in a list of 137 entrants.

WBZ'S BIRTHDAY TONIGHT

Westinghouse radio station WBZ, one of the pioneer broadcasting stations in the world which first went on the air September 19, 1921, shortly after the appearance of her sister station KDKA at Pittsburgh, transmitting the opening features of the Eastern States Exposition, will celebrate the fourth anniversary of the opening of the station tonight. An All-Star program of well-known radio entertainmnts has been arranged for this notable event which will last four hours. The program will start at seven o'clock, and with the exception of the hour period between eight and nine o'clock, the station will be on the air continuously until midnight.

OLD TIMERS.

One of the features of the anniversary program will be the appearance on the same program of many of the original announcers who have been broadcasting almost weekly over WBZ during the past year. Each artists and broadcasting organizations participating in the anniversary celebration need little introduction to the radio audience. They have been on the WBZ air regularly for the past year although this will be the first opportunity listeners will have to hear these organizations transmitting concerts on the same night.

TWO DANCE FEATURES.

Two of Boston's leading orchestras, the Brunswick Orchestra under the direction of Leo Reisman and the Copley-Plaza Orchestra under the direction of W. Edward Boyle, will furnish the dance music. These two orchestras will start at 9 o'clock until midnight, the Brunswick Orchestra playing a half hour program and then the lights will be followed by the Copley-Plaza Orchestra, which will conclude the program at midnight. It will be the first time that the two dance orchestras have played at the same evening and the two organizations will outdo each other in presenting unusual programs for the entertainment of the listeners.

WTIC ACCEPTS 475.9 METRES WAVE LENGTH

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—WTIC, the Traveler's radio broadcasting station here, will permanently accept, with the consent of the government, 475.9 meters as its wave length. The decision to operate on the new wave length follows an experimental exchange of wave lengths with WEEI of Boston.

YOUR BATHROOM "JEWELRY"

To me, one of the most important places in the home is the bathroom since it is the place where we refresh our tired bodies and renew our strength, and where we do most of our all-important "doiling up."

Giving the bathroom its due in importance, then, why not use the same good taste that you use in choosing the furnishing for the rest of your home? I've seen so many otherwise lovely bathrooms absolutely ruined by cheap fixtures picked up at hazard at so called "bargain" sales.

Most of us furnish only one bathroom in a lifetime and a modest expenditure of $25 will work wonders in giving you bathroom fixtures that will harmonize with the rest of your attractive home and give a lifetime of satisfaction. I've spoken once before of the "Sno-Wite" enamel fixtures, made by the Standard Plate Glass Company, and I hope that those of you who are building or refurnishing this Fall will keep them in mind. These manufacturers are really the inventors and originators of porcelain enameled bathroom trimming and insets, and their products have stood up under every test.

"Sno-Wite" fixtures are guaranteed not to peel, chip, rust or change color. Their snow white finish is truly everlasting, and they are indeed real "Bath Room Beautifiers." Wouldn't you like me to send you an interesting leaflet and price list, describing everything from soap dishes to extra long towel bars at prices from 80c up? Even though you are only planning to buy one or two pieces, it will be quite a saving to find out how reasonably such high quality fixtures can be purchased.

Recipes for Today

A POLISH WITH A THREE-FOLD VALUE

I know that our Club members will be glad to learn that at last a household polish has been perfected that is equally effective on glass, porcelain or any kind of metal.

Noxon, a polish made by the Noxon Company of Newark, New Jersey, exactly fills the bill for general household use. It may be used today for cleaning the brass pipes in the kitchen, tomorrow for polishing the finest silver or glassware, and in all three cases does the work efficiently and without injuring the articles on which it is used.

Noxon, the manufacturers tell me, is non-inflammable, non-combustible and is perfectly safe in every way.

This new "three fold" polish is very simple to use, and provides an easy way for keeping everything in the home spick, span and shining. Noxon may be obtained at any good grocery or hardware store or at most of the large chain stores. A good sized can is a quarter and such a package outlasts the average polish by a wide margin.

In addition to its cleaning and polishing qualities, Noxon protects the article upon which it is used with a thin invisible film which retards further tarnish or corrosion. I am sure that Club members will be more than pleased with the results obtained with this polish which the manufacturer says "Brightens the World."

Many of you have thanked me for introducing you to household helps that have lightened your daily duties and I know you will find Noxon one more friend who will work faithfully for you.

INTERESTING ICE FACTS

Modern housewives know that a great deal of food spoils during the changeable September and October weather and a great deal more becomes unpalatable and loses some of its food value during that period, and the only safe way to do is to keep their ice chests full.

Ice is never an expense, you know,—always a saving, not only in health and better foods but in actual money. It only takes a small amount of food to spoil to exceed the cost of the ice that would have kept it fresh and sweet. It has been said that a nickel's worth of ice saves a dollar's worth of food and that is really no exaggeration.

Every mother knows that the temperature of her baby's milk should never be allowed to go over 60 degrees, 45 degrees is better. Perhaps the milk will not taste sour if kept "in a cool place" without ice, but it will not be as good for your baby as when it's kept at a low temperature. Window boxes are not safe for even tho they keep the food cool enough, there's always the danger of contamination. Germ infected dust particles are constantly in the air and a window box provides a breeding place for them. The fly, too, carries bacteria, but he doesn't enjoy the cool depths of a well iced refrigerator, even tho he gets in.

Some real genius who likes to figure in percentages has estimated that ice costs only 74-10,000ths of the cost of living. This is certainly a very small proportion. Without ice your food bills would be doubled in warm weather and the food value in the intermediate months would be lessened.

By the way, I still have left a few of those interesting instructive little booklets giving many valuable hints for the care of refrigerators, foods, etc., that were furnished me by Mr. George H. Voter, Secretary of the Mass. Ice Dealers' Association. Just drop me a line, and I'll be glad to send one to you. They contain really interesting, valuable information that every progressive housewife will be glad to have.

MORE ON PRESSURE COOKERS

I received an interesting letter this morning from Mrs. Arthur Huxman of 891 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, who won the Packard Steam Pressure Cooker in our recent prize contest. She says: "My Packard Pressure Cooker came yesterday afternoon and we gave it an initiation immediately by cooking our evening meal in it. It certainly is fine. I love it, and the food all tastes so much better than when cooked in the old way. It has given me a fresh incentive for cooking." This is just one of the many letters of praise for the Packard that I have received during the past year.

You know there are several dollar and cents points to consider if you are thinking of purchasing a cooker. First, remember that a pressure cooker will save at least 700 hours a year of your time. Second, there is no shrinkage of meat or other foods. Third, it will cut your gas bills at least in half. Fourth, you will never have burned foods, as the kettle can't boil dry. Fifth, and very important, a pressure cooker will preserve the valuable vital vitamines and mineral salts so necessary in our foods.

I have told you about the Club plan by which you can purchase a Packard cooker with a minimum of effort and expense. The first thing I would do if I were interested in a cooker would be to send for a demonstrator to come out and show me just what this cooker will accomplish. A demonstrator is just at the end of your telephone and will gladly come without a penny of expense to you, and bake beans or cook your noonday meal for you without any obligation whatever. Perhaps you would like to ask in a few of your neighbors to see this most interesting demonstration. You will not be imbortuned to buy or embarrassed in any way.

A payment of $10.00 delivers a Pressure cooker to you and the balance can be arranged for either cash at the end of 30 days, or payable $1.00 a week for 35 weeks. The 12-quart cooker is $32.00 on the 30-day plan and $35 on the weekly-payment plan.

After you have taken all these points into consideration and seen for yourself the wonders of this cooker, I am quite sure that you will feel that you can well afford to invest in an article which will pay you 24 per cent. interest on your money, since very careful statistics show that a cooker will save at the very lowest estimate, $6.00 a year.

PEKIN-BORN BILLY LANDS IN BOSTON

Lad of Eight Sets Foot on Native Soil for the Second Time

Billy Kroner's eight years old and an American citizen, yet he's only five full days and a part of the sixth in his native land. Billy got in today from Peking, China, by the way of Egypt, India, the European continent and England with his father, Major Hayes Kroner, assistant military attache at the American Legation in China, and his mother.

They came in the Furness liner Newfoundland as part of a list of ninety-eight cabin passengers, with a number of second and third class passengers. Included among the cabin passengers were Premier W. S. Monroe and Mrs. Monroe, Hon. A. B. Morine, president of the legislative council and Mrs. Morine, Hon. C. J. Fox and Hon. W. J. Higgins and Mrs. Higgins, all of Newfoundland. The men of the party are delegates to the inter-parliamentary conference at Washington.

Billy was born at Peking eight years ago, when his father was with the American forces at Tien Tsen. Four years ago he was five days in San Francisco when his father and mother made a hurried trip to that port from China. Despite the fact he was born in China, and his mother is a most charming English girl, he's a thorough American.

Major Kroner has completed his tour as an attache and after a brief furlough will be assigned to active duty with an infantry regiment somewhere in the States.

The Newfoundland delegates to the inter-parliamentary conference come with no set program. They have merely accepted an invitation to attend and will sit in on the deliberations, Premier Monroe remarked.

THRILL AWAITS FIRE MEDAL HERO

Mayor to Pin Boston Evening American Honor Badge on 'Larry' Doyle Wednesday

When Edward F. Doyle was a boy his ambition was to become a fireman when he grew up. That boyhood ambition was realized.

So, when Ladderman "Larry" Doyle steps forward next Wednesday noon in Parkman Band Stand, Boston Common, for Mayor James M. Curley to pin the Boston Evening American Diamond Medal upon his coat for having performed the "most meritorious act" of any man in the Boston Fire Department during a six months period, it undoubtedly will be one of the most thrilling moments of his life.

The Boston Evening American wants YOU to be there to let Ladderman Doyle and the other brave men of the BEST fire department in this country know that YOU not only admire but APPRECIATE what they are doing for you and yours.

A REAL HERO.

Doyle is a hero and make no mistake about it. At risk of his own life—and with thoughts of his dear wife and two lovely kiddies at home, in mind—he plunged into the tangled wreckage of the Pickwick Club on Beach street at dawn on July 4 last and extricated four men, after which he was sent to City Hospital because of exhaustion. He labored until he collapsed.

The men whom Doyle rescued at great personal risk to himself are Richard Lovejoy of No. 28 Sherman street, Everett, who is still lame from injuries received then; Edward W. LaGouff of No. 7 Bradford terrace, Everett; Revki Chebba of No. 14 Porter street, South End, Boston, and an unidentified man known as "the man in the dress suit," who left the scene of the building collapse without giving his name.

These four men are living proof of Doyle's heroism. But for his dashing bravery they probably would be resting in their graves today.

Members of The Sparks Club have accepted an invitation to attend in a body. This unique organization is composed of fifty Boston business and professional men who have a hobby of attending all fires in this city of two alarms or more. "Al" Fletcher of Charlestown is president and Jack Basey of Commonwealth avenue, Allston, is treasurer.

BEGINS AT NOON.

The fun will start at 12 o'clock with a fine band concert by one of the leading instrumental organizations in Boston. The concert will continue for half an hour. Promptly at 12:30 James T. Williams, Jr., Editor of the Boston Evening American, as acting chairman, will address the gathering briefly on "Why We Are Here," after which he will introduce Alfred Davenport, former president of the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters, as permanent chairman.

Ladderman Doyle was cited by his commanding officer, Lieutenant Thomas H. Brown, on the day of the rescues after "Larry" had been removed to City Hospital in an ambulance. The decision of the Boston Fire Department Board of Merit, composed of one man from each rank, as well as that of the Boston Evening American Citizens Committee, that Doyle's act was the "most meritorious" during the six months period, was unanimous.

ELOQUENT ORATORS.

Chairman Davenport will introduce Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, who took personal charge of the rescue work by 200 firemen at the Pickwick Club collapse.

Mayor James M. Curley, New England's leading orator, will then address the gathering on the meaning of acts such as that performed by Ladderman Doyle, after which he will pin the Diamond Medal on the lapel of the fire hero's coat. He will also present Mrs. Alice Dewitt Doyle, wife of the hero of the occasion, with $100 in gold on behalf of the Boston Evening American.

It was an heroic urge that sent "Larry" Doyle to France. He enlisted in the overseas forces at a time when it was believed firemen would be exempted. He is still being treated for mustard gas wounds sustained at Ypres and Verdun where he was a member of the chemical warfare service.

Decide NOW that you will attend the exercises Wednesday noon in Parkman Band Stand. Come and bring your friends.

"CAPTAIN X" AT COPLEY IS MOST ENTERTAINING

With the hearty plaudits of a capacity audience and the willing hands of his capable company, E. E. Clive successfully launched his new season Saturday night at the Copley Theatre in the first American showing of "Captain X," a farcical comedy in three acts and one set.

The deft skill of Alan Mowbray was never better employed than in the portrayal of the suave captain, "the modern Claude Duval," who, the better to ply his trade of polite robber, engages himself and his assistants, as servants in the nouveau riche home of Amos Riggs—he of the Harness Polish industry. When he learns that the police are on his trail, the wily captain persuades the intensely dull witted Riggs to change places with him, Riggs to pose as the butler and the butler as Riggs—the masquerade to be a means of "entertaining" some guests not heretofore known to the real Riggs.

Governments May Unite Against Communists

London, Sept. 21 (I. N. S.)—Governments of the world may soon unite in a world drive against Communists and their ilk.

Sir William Joynson Hicks, Home Secretary of Great Britain, intimated this today, the first comment made by any official of the government upon the action of the United States in barring Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist M. P.

"I am delighted the United States has declined to admit Saklatvala to preach revolutionary doctrines in that country," said Sir William, upon his return to London from Balmoral Castle, where he had been in conference with King George.

WESTERN FILM AT FENWAY

If you've ever yearned for a view of Arizona ranch life before risking your vacation money with the tourist agents, see it by proxy with "A Son of His Father," now at the Fenway.

Unlike so many of the usual type of "Western" thrillers, "A Son of His Father" sticks pretty closely to realism in showing modern Arizona ranch life; it is a good story, well told and the characters are human.

Jack Morgan (played by Warner Baxter) inherits a ranch and some debts from his father. The ranch was all right, but the debts were more than he could handle so the "old home" started to slide toward the mouth Eastern crook who held the notes. His insistence on obtaining possession of the property seemed queer until it was discovered that its location near the Mexican border afforded the opportunity to engage in the traffic of contraband.

Catching the offender was easy enough for the Morgan outfit, but if they did it would incriminate the weak Larry O'Shea, brother to Jack's sweetheart, Nora.

Bessie Love plays the winsome Irish colleen, Nora and extracts a deal of comedy from the role. Warner Baxter gives a splendid performance with a fine restraint—sometimes lacking in movie heroes. Raymond Hatton supplies a character bit in keeping with the high standard of the rest of the piece.

Fitchburg Burglary

Fitchburg, Sept. 21.—Burglars operated right in Fitchburg's main street when they cut out a section of the plate glass in the front of the store of V. A. Bovoin in the Flatiron building and making away with six diamond rings worth about $400.

'LIQUOR LURE' IS GRANTED DIVORCE

Alta Lillian Middleton Accused Husband of Cruelty and Intoxication

Alta Lillian Middleton, who achieved fame as a "Liquor Lure" in Cambridge, was granted a divorce from Robert Middleton by Judge Lesgatt in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today.

She charged cruelty and intoxication and gave the court an affecting picture of conditions under which she had been forced to live.

Mrs. Middleton said her husband provided her and her two small children with a Summer camp in Wakefield as a Winter home, and the wind would have blown the curtains off if she hadn't plugged the cracks up.

She said that only for her brother she and her children would have died of want and exposure.

She was given the custody of the children, Robert and Lillian. Middleton did not contest the suit.

Mrs. Middleton was a storm centre of controversy some months ago when somebody in Cambridge, and Brockton began using her to trap liquor sellers.

There was some condemnation of such tactics and when it was stated she was employed by the police of Cambridge, Chief McBride indignantly denied it. He said she was being paid by "some outside agency."

She herself did not like to be termed a lure, saying that she fought rum from principle; because she had seen in her own home the ravages it could make.

PROVIDENCE WOMAN KILLED BY FALL

Providence, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Catherine Wilson, 60, was killed when she fell from a third story window of her home at No. 90 Broad street. Mrs. Wilson went to the window to look out into the street and lost her balance, plunging head foremost to the sidewalk.

AUTOS IN JAM AS BUILDINGS BLAZE

Flaming House and Outbuildings in North Grafton Attract Thousands to Scene

Worcester, Sept. 21.—More than 10,000 automobiles were caught in a jam on the Grafton road when fire swept a fifteen-room house, barn and three outbuildings on the Bonnybrook Farm in North Grafton.

William O. Bacon and his family, tenants of the farm, were forced to stand by and watch the buildings destroyed because of lack of water supply.

Low hanging clouds, reflecting the flames, sent out a fiery glow visible for miles, attracting thousands of autoists to the scene.

For at least two miles each side of the fire machines stood three and four abreast on the road, tieing up traffic for two hours.

The flames started in a hayloft in the barn, and carried by a high wind, spread to an outbuilding, and then leaped seventy-five feet to the house.

Mr. Bacon aroused his family and while neighbors telephoned the Worcester fire department set about saving furniture and personal effects.

When the fire fighting apparatus arrived it was helpless, as there was no water nearer than three-quarters of a mile. The Grafton department stood by and checked a grass fire after the Worcester men had left.

WIFE DEFENDS JAMES AGAINST OTHER WOMAN

New York, Sept. 21.—The wife who has patted and consoled Walter James, elderly defendant in the $100,000 breach of promise suit brought by Ernette Bauer, thirty-five-year-old divorcee, at the trial in Circuit Court here, is expected to take the stand to defend her husband against the other woman's claims, today.

COOL WEATHER DUE TONIGHT

A cool wave is sweeping down on Boston today from the Northwest, and weather bureau experts declare it will hit here tonight. It is scheduled to drive away the extreme humidity and warm weather that began during the night and give the whole eastern part of the country a touch of real Fall weather.

The recorded temperature today belies the feeling of heat experienced by the populace. The thermometer took a jump of 10 deg. at midnight, going from 58 to 68 between that hour and 1 a. m. but at 11 a. m. it had risen to only 77, by the thermometer, but feeling like 90 to stewing humanity.

STEALS CHURCH'S SUNDAY COLLECTION

Worcester, Sept. 21.—Contributions dropped in the plate at the Sunday morning service in the First Unitarian Church at Court Hill yesterday were stolen by a thief who is believed to have secreted himself in the building after the parishioners had gone.

The theft was discovered by Rev. Maxwell Savage, pastor, who summoned detectives. An open window showed the method of exit used by the thief.

The building is close by the Worcester County Courthouse, entered a few days ago and ransacked.

HERMIT DIED AS HE WISHED, "IN OPEN"

Holyoke, Sept. 21.—John Wren was found dead beneath a beech tree here. Leaves fluttered down upon his face, smiling in death, and birds sang a requiem in the branches above.

John Wren had his wish. The 75-year-old hermit, who loved the open and all nature's creatures, had often expressed the hope that when the final call came for him it would find him "out in the air with the birds and the trees."

A Taste of Honey

A Story that Bares the Soul of a Woman, Twice Cheated Out of a Love She Is Forced to Steal

JERROLD FREYNE, a promising young author who has written a book dealing coldly and calmly with love and marriage, is appointed to a clerkship in the Foreign Legation. ELSPETH VOICEY, a cold-sweet daughter of aristocracy, is his promised bride. While wedding plans are under discussion, Jerrold meets GERDA MASKLYN, wife of his friend. He is stricken by her strange beauty and by her bewitching appeal of person. Immediately he is given a new interpretation of love, vastly different from that he put into his book. The situation is rapidly getting beyond his control, and he finds his cultured philosophy being pushed aside by a feeling blissfully new to him.

CHAPTER 20

BESETTING problems pursued their own shadows along the corridors of his brain. He lay, sleepless, in a bedroom picked out with queer shadows of moonlight.

He was not thinking so much of those two women, the fair and the dark, daylight and dusk, who plagued him, but of himself.

He saw what a fool he was and had been. How men like Arakas must laugh to see him ploughing and plunging in a slough which they would have avoided as a matter of course. He had always heard that the grass upon morasses grew more temptingly green than upon solid ground, that Nature cruelly designed an inviting resting place for a man's feet where she meant to ensnare. He had stepped on the treacherous green—his acquaintanceship with Gerda.

For a moment, like a man in a morass he had thought: "Now we'll soon be out of this. If a strong man can't beat a patch of mud——"

But the mystery of Gerda had not been so easily conquered. He wrenched his feet from the toils, and momentarily believed to have defeated them. How little he had known—and how much his ignorance must amuse those who could watch him struggling.

Yet, he argued feverishly, tossing and turning, you can't know things like that if you were never taught, and found it doubly difficult if you had started out with a false preconception. He saw now why Gerda had found something too good to be true in that novel of his, why certain of the critics had laughed—they must all think him a fool!

Try as he would, he could not win sleep. Below in the street sounded the cry of the watchman who, true to tradition, still made his round of the city. "Three o'clock and a fine morning." A distant motor car broke the silence with its faint purr.

Arakas Knows All

He outlined to himself the first strokes in this complicated game: Gerda coming to disturb him; the meeting of her and Elspeth, his attempt to leave well alone by leaving for Varvasch without again seeing Gerda; her following him, offering herself and then denying; the strange awakening of Elspeth; and, lastly, Gerda's declaration of revenge upon herself.

That last stood out from the others as the strangest and most perplexing stroke of all. He told himself that she could not have met what she said—and yet why say it? She had said: "Am I a child to talk like this when I don't mean anything?" She was a proud woman by her own proud confession, and would never have uttered that threat, for threat it was, unless she meant by the means she suggested to chastise her own pride.

Then he pictured the scene of her self mortification, clearly against the curtain of darkness as though some one had projected a vision of it before his eyes. He saw Arakas, secretly smiling his devilish smile, stretching out to take what she offered him. He would know just what he was getting and how he had got it. Lips fastened on a white shoulder, and slender lovelines was yielded.

That could not be, oh it could not. Yet why should he prevent it or mind her with horror in his eyes? She had offered to him the right to her beauty, and he had refused it and come two thousand miles to lay herself at his feet, and he had put her away from him. How could he act dog in manger and say to Arakas, "Even though I will not take her she is not for you"?

The vision tortured him. The two of them seemed to haunt the shadowy corners of the room: Gerda's pale face thrown back before a rain of kisses, lips slightly parted, eyes closed to show the faintly violet lids as he had seen them when she lay under the pines; and Arakas' eyes still smiling the wise, omniscient smile as his lips greedily stared.

Why Not Taste?

"And I have never kissed her!" Jerrold stormed. "Oh, fool, fool, fool! Not that night when I sat entranced by the piano in her drawing

NEAR ROBBERY SCENE, HENCE HE IS BEATEN

As a result of being in the vicinity where an attempted robbery took place today on the Revere Beach Parkway, Joseph Murphy, of No 60 Sagamore street, Lynn, received a severe beating up.

Henry Bering, of No. 58 Elberton street, Revere, stopped on the Parkway when he had trouble with his motorcycle. When he saw a suspicious looking man approaching him he started away. A short distance further Bering met a sailor, who said an attempt was made to rob him

The two men then walked back up the road and met Murphy. The latter denied being the person they were looking for and an argument followed with the sailor assaulting Murphy

Murphy reported the matter to the Revere police, saying he had lost his watch and chain, glasses and hat in the scuffle

FRANCE PROBES REPORT OF U. S. WARNING AVIATORS

Paris, Sept. 21 (I.N.S.).—France is surprised at the action taken by Secretary of State Kellogg in warning American aviators with the French army in Morocco that they may lose their citizenship if they continue to fight for France. "We are most skeptical over the newspaper reports concerning the alleged note of the Secretary of State of the United States to the consul at Tangier," said a foreign office spokesman today. We are inclined to doubt that such a note has ever been sent. We are investigating.

MISSING ALLSTON MAN RETURNS

Unclaimed Revere Boy, Aged 10, Victim of Amnesia

HELD BY STATE POLICE

Unable to Identify Self in Mental Tests by Doctors

Somewhere a mother is anxiously awaiting the homecoming of her 9-year-old boy, while at the Metropolitan police station at Revere Beach the officials are at their wits' end to locate the home of the errant son.

Medical experts too, are amazed, for the boy shows every evidence of being an amnesia victim, something decidedly rare in one of his age.

The youngster has been sleeping out on the beach for a week, he told the police, and his only food has been hot dogs and pop-corn given him by the proprietors of street stands.

The lad believes that his name is either Charles Donovan or Charles King and his father is a watchman. He believes the his mother left him with a woman he called "Auntie," and he knows that he attended a Roman Catholic Church.

But who his parents are, where his home is, he professes to have forgotten entirely, and the policemen and women who have questioned him are convinced of his sincerity.

Mrs. Mary C. Mayo, policewoman of the beach Metropolitan district first noticed the boy and told the police station. He was combing his hair with a fragment of mirror. The experienced policewoman knew well enough that this was a favorite trick of young runaways who had spent the night in the open

However, when the boy told her that he lived in Revere and had simply come to the beach to swim she suspected nothing, particularly as his clothes were in good order and he showed every mark of care. Later in the week, however, she saw him again, thin, dirty, ragged and forlorn. She brought him into the station house, where he was given a bath, some clean clothes and something to eat

The most urgent questioning brought from him no clue as to his home or his parents, and now the police are anxious to see if somebody will claim him

AUTOS KILL 17 IN BAY STATE IN WEEK

The State's toll of death by automobiles for the week ending September 18 was exactly that of last week, 17 being killed, of which six were children.

There were 108 convicted of operating automobiles while under the influence of liquor, 31 more than the preceding week. In cases suspended or revoked totaled 455 or 240 more than the week before.

Missing Girl

Miss Mary Palladino, 15, of No 92 George street, Roxbury, who is missing. A lodger at her parents' home has also vanished. Police are seeking trace of the pair

SEEK BOARDER AND GIRL, 15

Romeo Messia, twenty-six years old, a lodger at her parents' home, is likewise missing. The girl left yesterday morning, ostensibly for mass at St Patrick's Church. Messia left home just before Mary

When she did not return home after her church her folks became alarmed, and notified the Dudley street police

Messia, a contractor, has been in his home with the Palladino family for three years. As far as Mary's parents know he did not take any of his wearing apparel, nor did Mary. Her mother is prostrated at her disappearance and under the care of a physician

She is five feet five inches in height and weighs 120 pounds. She is of medium complexion, has brown eyes and black hair. Messia is five feet seven inches in height, weighs 160 pounds. He is of dark complexion and wore a blue serge suit and light soft hat

BISHOP OFFICIATES AT MANCHESTER RITES

Bishop William Lawrence of Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, officiated at the funeral of the Rev. Leander S. Mapchester, D. D. in the Congregational church here, he was assisted by Dean F. S. Rousmaniere and Rev. F. E. Webster, rector of Christ Church, Woburn.

Burial was in the North cemetery, Providence. Dr. Manchester, formerly rector of St. John's Church, Providence, was for many years a resident of the Bay State town.

He was a graduate of Harvard university and was ordained to the ministry in 1870. He was consecrated bishop of Massachusetts in 1893, succeeding Phillips Brooks.

CHINATOWN 'QUEEN' IS STOIC

'White' Girl Who Has Not Left Home for 16 Years Accepts Fate

By MAXINE McBRIDE

Worcester, Sept. 21.—In their dragnet of drug investigations, the Federal authorities have once more raided the home of Chinatown's "white" queen, Katy Dick, daughter of a Chinese dancing girl and a French naval officer, who has lived on Spring street in the heart of the Chinese section ever since she came to Worcester to live with her Chinese bridegroom, Charley Dick, sixteen years ago.

"They didn't find anything," laughed Katy derisively in telling her story to a Boston Evening American reporter today, "and they never will. I smoked opium once—never again—it made me sick. I am sick now—never sleep—never eat—just smoke cigarettes—that's all."

From her bunk in the basement room, the hauntingly lovely face of the "White Queen" still bearing traces of the once unrivaled beauty of her away over Frisco's Chinatown from whence she came—shone vidly against the dingy hangings her bunk

THIN AND HAGGARD.

Her face was thin and haggard as her brown eyes sparkled and her black hair framed a face still beautiful in its pallid white and red, mocking lips.

"Sixteen years ago I come to this city," said Katy between pressures of racking coughs. "And since I come here I never leave my house—never have no woman friends. My dog, my husband—his friends—that's all I want.

"The other day the men come again to raid me. They come I don't know how many times since I live here. They not find a thing. They never find a thing here," and Katy looked again with derisive laughter.

It has long been alleged by the police that Katy's stronghold is the heart of Chinatown but a few days from the lowest police station in Worcester, Police Chief Jones has been one of drug peddlers and drug addicts.

"MADAME BUTTERFLY."

It is a "Madame Butterfly" story that the "White Queen" lives, they said when she chooses to talk. By JACK CONWAY.

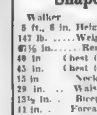
MICKEY WALKER is a 7 to 5 favorite to retain his title as world's welterweight champion in his fifteen-round battle to a decision with Dave Shade at the Yankee Stadium New York, tonight.



Shade's recent sensational knockout victory over Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo has won for him many backers, who are risking the old bankroll on the Californian's chances of victory.

Tex Rickard Jack Conway expresses him self as confident that the tussle will attract a gate of close to $700,000 This will set a new mark for a welterweight contest

Shade has been Walker a most persistent challenger since the latter wrested the welterweight crown from the aged brow of Jack Britton in old Madison Square Garden, almost three years ago

The New York Boxing Commission recognized Shade as Mickey's chief challenger and insisted that Walker meet him in a title contest When the Jersey battler failed to do so, he was suspended. The ban was finally lifted on condition that Walker sign for a Shade match

JACK KEARNS, Walker's pilot, and Leo Flynn, Shade's manager, will have to appear before the New York Boxing Commission and explain a wager they made on to night's bout. Kearns is reported to have bet $7,500 against $5,000 of Flynn's money that Walker wins

The New York Commission intends to suspend all managers in future who wager on the result of ring contests. The commission very rightfully contends that gambling is injurious to the boxing game. This is particularly true when men are closely allied with the ring game wager on the result of boxing contests. It opens the way to charges that bouts are "fixed" so as to enable the parties most interested in them to make a financial cleanup.

The writer believes that the Massachusetts Boxing Commission should follow in the lead of the New York boxing fathers in barring from the game all persons holding licenses as boxers, managers, matchmakers or seconds who bet on the outcome of bouts.

WALKER will face a severe test tonight. Mickey, a miniature Dempsey, will require all of his dynamite when he faces the crafty Shade. The latter proved in his tussle with Slattery that he is not only a brilliant boxer, but that he also packs a tremendous punch in his right hand

Walker frankly admits that if the bout goes the distance that Shade is liable to win the decision. He has frequently made this assertion to the writer. That is why the Kearns entry will make such a strong bid to win by a knockout tonight.

DICK (HONEYBOY) FINNEGAN will be very much in the limelight during the next few days. At Philadelphia on Wednesday night he will oppose Babe Ruth, classy featherweight. Then he will come back to Boston to finish training for his ten-round tussle with Babe Herman California featherweight, which will be staged by the Commercial A. C at Mechanics Building on next Monday night.

The Finnegan-Herman bout is one of the most important featherweight contests that has been booked for Boston since Red Chapman defeated Johnny Dundee. Herman recently defeated Kid Kaplan, so-called world's featherweight champion, at Waterbury, Ct., though he only received a draw.

Herman cannot afford to lose to Finnegan at this stage of his career as he is booked to battle Johnny Dundee in New York on October 5 while he will have Kaplan as an opponent in a return bout at the New Madison Square Garden early in December.

FINNEGAN AND BABE RUTH IN BATTLE

Philadelphia, Sept 21—That mythical welterweight title may change hands in a Philadelphia ring, Pinkey Mitchell, the Milwaukee adonis of the squared circle, will have to be at his best to retain it on Wednesday night when he collides fist-on with Joe Dundee, the Baltimore climber. Ten rounds or less they will battle in one of the five ten round bouts that comprise the all-star show to be staged at Shibe Park for the Columbus Italian Hospital Fund

Mitchell has faced formidable ring foemen in his eight years of fistic ruffs, but Dundee looms as one of the most dangerous opponents ever to square off against the rosy-cheeked Milwaukeean. Benny Leonard, Lew Tendler, Jack Britton, Rocky Kansas, Pal Moran and Johnny Tillman are names to conjure with when talking of knights of the ring who know how to use their fists in combat. These are only a half dozen of the top-notchers faced by Mitchell.

Dundee demonstrated in his sensational bout with Lew Tendler about six weeks ago that he can ably take care of himself against the best of the present crop of leather pushers Although his bout with Letty Low was called a draw, many of the spectators thought that Dundee had beaten the veteran Tendler.

The rugged Baltimore Italian has several important bouts in the making Much will depend on his showing against Mitchell whether or no, he goes for the title match. All of which leads up to the fact that the ever-pushing Joe will be fighting for big stakes when he puts up his dukes in the same ring with Mitchell

Word from the training camps of the eight other boxers who will help put the Columbus Fund over the top is to the effect that they are beginning to speed up their training as there will be no question about reaching the peak of their fighting form.

Babe Ruth, of this city, will step out in one of the most important bouts of his career when he clashes with Honey Boy Finnegan of Boston who was awarded the decision over Danny Kramer in a recent ten round bout.

A lightwe ght bout on the Greater Shibe Park bill attracting unusual interest is the meeting between Sid Terris of New York and Basil Gallano. Benny Bass will have to have a pet punches working at their best to halt the winning campaign of Eddie Anderson of Chicago

VICENTINI BACK IN CONDITION AGAIN

New York, Sept 21—Lou Vicentini is back in condition after a touch campaign of training and looked much better against Soly Seaman than he did with Joe Dundee. The Italian can hit, and he tried his best with Seaman, but Soly was a bit too smart for him

PRO GOLFERS TO PLAY IN THREES

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A P.)—Galleries are going to see more golf during the professional golfers' champion ship at Olympia than has ever been possible before in a major tournament, for the pairings as issued today show that the contestants will play in threes

In addit on, the two courses to be used at Olympia are so arranged that those who do not care to trek after the players may watch the play on several holes at once

As there are 68 entrants in the medal play at 36 holes today, play will be continuous from 10 a. m till dusk. The sets of three who play course No. 3 in the forenoon will try their skill on No. 4 in the afternoon, and vice versa.

The 32 players having lowest scores for the two links will qualify for match play. The contestants have already been selected in regional meets, so that the cream of all the professionals in the country are on the card for the medal rounds

LEWIS TO WRESTLE MUNN AT TUSLA

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Negotiations have been closed for a finish wrestling match between Ed Lewis, claimant of the world's heavy weight wrestling title, and Wayne "Big" Munn, considered Lewis' strongest opponent, Sam Avy, Tulsa promoter announced today

The match will be held at Tulsa October 7, with the diamond studded belt, won by Lewis in a tournament promoted by Tex Rickard several years ago, and symbolic of the title, at stake.

Coach Eddie Brawley of Peabody High School has his squad in fine condition for the game today in the Leo Buckley Stadium with the Chelsea High

This game originally was scheduled for last Saturday, but it was postponed by agreement

The Brawley coached team has been working hard and it is confident that it will score a victory over the Chelsea aggregation

Andover lost a mighty fine prospect when Hugo Ericson, Gardner High athlete, failed to pass his entrance exams. This boy was counted upon to fill one of the vacancies in the Blue eleven this Fall and also to put the shot for the track team.

Walter Holmes, former Melrose High athlete, has decided to return to Andover again this season, all of which is good news to the Blue track squad. This boy was one of the most consistent point getters on the academy outfit last year

Coach Hubie McDonough of the Manchester High team has several vacancies to fill this Fall on his Manchester, N. H., eleven. Johnny Dorell is going to be the hardest to fill, as this lad was about as classy a back as there was in the scholastic ranks last year.

Jere Minihan, ex-St. James High all around athlete and ace centre of the Georgetown eleven, was picked on the All South Atlantic team, will assist Coach Bolger Cornell with the Haverhill Parochial High team this year. He was one of the scrappiest boys ever to represent the St. James School

While it is not generally known Captain Emile Maturax, of the Lynn General Electrics is a Cuban by birth. Incidentally the big boy is one of the best looking punters in the game this year, as he proved by his work against Salem.

Bill Holloway of Nordo Nissl, that pair of crack ends on the St. James High team of a year ago, will be sorely missed by the Haverhill outfit this Fall. For all around ability it was hard to find a better pair than these gamesters.

Fast Soccer Played on Week End

By BILL McAULEY

More than one surprise was given soccer fans as result of the Sabbath games. Chief among them be ing the victory of Charlestown over Boston and the shutting out of the Boston Celtics champions of the Bay State League by St. Mary's of Lynn

Sam Marks' eleven got the breaks in their favor with New Bedford and came through with a lucky two points. Over 10,000 fans were on hand for this interesting fray.

Andy Stevens put the Whalers in the lead during the first period with one of the best goals seen this year.

Providence got a draw with the New York Giants at the Cyclodrome, neither team scoring in a game that was rather rough at times. Up Woburn way the fans were delighted with the play of the Tanners, they pinning a 6 to 1 defeat on the Lynn Gas eleven.

Football? This Paper Will Show the Way

The subjects of the articles are: The modern attack; the modern defence; the shifts and the special plays; the kicking game; the backfield; the line; generalship; what the intersectional games will show; situation of the big three; progressives and conservatives, sweep and thrust; the main divisions; a general survey.

A series of thirty-six illustrated articles on "The Playing Secrets of Famous Football Stars" will also start soon. Harvard players, Boston College players, men you fans know and have seen play, will tell in their own words real inside stories. These articles have a widespread appeal for players and spectators.

The Boston Evening American will cover New England football with a completeness never before approached. Herb Treat will write frequently of the finer points of the game. Bill Grimes and Nick Flatley will be on the job. FOR FOOTBALL—THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN. The news and the features on a great sport that is in for a great year. Speed, accuracy and interest. Helen Wills Says Drive Wins Games

By HELEN WILLS

Helen Wills, foremost American woman tennis player, who is writing exclusive articles for the Boston American, today discusses the advantage of the "drive" over the "chop stroke." Other interesting articles by Miss Wills will appear on these pages.

THE "drive" is rapidly replacing the "chop stroke" as a match winner

I saw this graphically illustrated in the semi-finals of the national women's tennis tournament last month between Miss Kathleen Mac Kane and Miss Elizabeth Ryan

Many tennis experts said this was the best woman's match ever seen in this country. This does not mean that better playing on the part of individual girls has not been seen, but that never before have met two such wonderful players, who were so nearly even in excellent production of stroke, courts strategy and courage

Conditions were perfect for the match. The weather was cool, the court dry and the players keen. The disadvantages of both were equal—that is, they were both playing "away from home," since Miss Mac Kane has done most of her playing in England, and Miss Ryan has lived here for thirteen years

It was a matter of the chop stroke versus the "drive." There has been much discussion as to the relative merits of these two strokes and many questions asked as to whether a "chopping" genius is able to defeat a master of the drive. Of course, in this case, both women were accomplished net players

EVEN so, the real foundation of their play was based on the drive and the chop. Of late, we know that the champion players have made use of the drive more than of the other stroke, and it might be safe to say, drawing our conclusions from the proof that we have at hand, that the driving game is the winning one.

The answer to the question, "Why did Miss MacKane defeat Miss Ryan," would be then, "the drive." The danger of a chop lies in its bounce; the difficulty of a drive in its speed. The bound of a chop varies according to the court, while the speed of a drive can remain more or less constant. Therefore the driving player should be the more consistent winner, between two players who are more or less evenly matched

In this match both players were equally good at the net, but, even so, Miss Mackane had the upper hand there. This is to be explained by the fact that the chop is a slower shot in the air than the drive, and allows the opposing net player more time to take her position and place her return volley.

These two players will meet again and it will be interesting to note what the results will be. But it will be safe to say, playing under normal conditions, that the master of the drive will prevail over the master of the chop.

AMATEURS CLASH IN DILBOY RING SHOW

With the opening of the amateur boxing season, numerous aspirants are anxious to display their wares and the show to be held next Thursday evening in K of C Hall Somerville, under the auspices of John Post, V F W, gives every indication of producing a banner opening for the season's veterans when that organization ushers in its third annual season in boxing.

In its efforts to give the fans a sterling show and plenty of action the committee is receiving entries in the following classes, viz.: 112, 118, 126, 138 and 147 pounds.

From the calibre and type of entries being received, it is an assured fact that a number of new boys will make their debut in the roped arena. In addition to the newcomers there will be a number of the old guard left over from last year who did not take the jump into the professional ranks

GREAT ARRAY OF BACKS, SAYS HERBERT REED

GRANGE IS FOREMOST IN FIELD

World's Greatest Football Authority Discusses the Grid Luminaries

By HERBERT REED

(Copyright, 1925, by Universal Service.)

No matter what the form of coaching, a great array of backs will be seen on the football field this season. Grange, of course, should be the outstanding star, but he will not be lonesome.

Princeton will bring out a star in Reese and Harvard will do its best to provide a successor to even the best "feathered" runner seen in action in many a year. Slagle of Princeton, wide runner, and forward passer, is one of the season's best prospects, and there are many first class kickers and runners in the smaller colleges.

Herbert Reed

Tuss Wilcox Baker of North Carolina, Dud Pease of Columbia, the great quarterback at Montana since Jack Thomas turned "pro," Baker is just about a team in his own right and Pease as neat a quarterback as one would care to see with the possible exception of Bunnell of Yale.

ZARAKOFF A STAR.

At Harvard, incidentally, they are working with Zarakoff, preparing the nearest thing to the "Climax Ramrod" that will be furnished by the East this year. Zarakoff is something of a kicker, a fine "switching" runner, and a first class interferer.

Yale coaches have been watching Miller, the heavyweight sprinter. They have been figuring that he would turn up as the No. 1 man. This is doubtful. If the form of attack that Charles Daly is addicted to goes on at Harvard, Miller, I think will find quite a different place in the backfield—granted always that he can be taught to hold onto the ball.

One expects, of course, from Notre Dame the best passing and running game, but not necessarily the best kicking. Even before the days of Knute Rockne, and under the coaching of Jesse Harper, of Chicago, the Notre Dame eleven was a great ground gainer.

BEATEN BY YALE

One of the best elevens the South Bend institution ever turned out capped into a Yale eleven that should have been defeated.

It so happened that day that a few Eli knowledge was out of fundamentals, and the visitors from Notre Dame made the fundamental error subsequently copied by the Elis, of putting on all their best plays inside the tackle position. It was pretty football but not successful.

That little matter of putting on the pressure between the tackles has upset more than one coaching system. The generalship may call for the widespread game, but the preparation between the tackles is still effective.

Treat Shows How to Meet Attack

These pictures illustrate how a tackle or an end will meet the interference and how to make the tackle.

Plate No. 1 (at top) shows two interfering backs charging at the end and he is seen holding or checking them momentarily from a low position with a stiff hand charge.

By checking these backs in this manner the runner is forced to go either to the inside or outside. He must act quickly, but the tackler must make sure which way he is going.

In this case you can see that the runner has chosen to run outside. So on Plate 2 (in middle) you will note that the tackler has side-stepped to the outside man.

The foot-work on this particular move is most important. Rather than cross legs, he must use the outside interferer to balance on and jump quickly, continuing to face the runner, so as to be sure he is always in sole of him.

Plate 3 (at bottom) shows the result of correct foot-work and timing of the play. You will note that the tackler's head is on the outside of the runner and the right arm around the front of his thighs. The hands are locked around his legs and with enough lifting power from the legs and back the runner should be crushed to the ground.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's Most Successful Teacher," says Chick Evans.

While too much tightness usually begins in the wrists and forearms, it is most easily noticeable in the upper arms and across the shoulders. One of the characteristics of rigidity in the golf swing is that it spreads with amazing rapidity—rigidity in the wrists will in the twinkling of an eye fairly paralyze for the moment the entire upper body. Tightness is a muscle stretched and drawn as you would stretch a rubber band, but rigidity is stiffness that takes all the spring from the muscles. Thus the best practice with the golf club is always to get free and easy in the hands. Grip rather firmly with the thumb and forefinger of each hand, but keep the wrists and arms loose. Start with this freedom and the muscles will gradually "wind up." Start with them stiff and they quickly become rigid.

WATERBURY WINS FLAG FOR SECOND TIME

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 20. (A.P.)—Fire was written on the Eastern League season today, with the teams finishing in the following order: Waterbury, Hartford, Worcester, New Haven Springfield, Bridgeport, Albany, Pittsfield.

The races for first, for third and for fifth places were not settled until almost the last day. Until the middle of this week Hartford was within striking distance to replace Waterbury, whose victory this year is the Brasscos second in consecutive years.

SYRACUSE LOSES STAR GRIDIRON PERFORMER

Syracuse, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Charles J. O'Connor of New York City, ex Suffield, Conn., star end and member of the Syracuse freshman football team, will be out of the game an indefinite period, because of injuries received in practice. O'Connor wrenched his neck, causing a tearing and spraining of ligaments, when he attempted to break up interference. Physicians today said there was no evidence of a fracture.

Big Boxing Card at Revere Track

The clashing of George Cook and Pat McCarthy of the Revere Cycle Track on Saturday afternoon is the only big league boxing show on the calendar in Boston. This affair, is under the auspices of the Revere Post, V. of F. W.

Beneath the main bout will be a scheduled 10-rounder between Tom Kirby and Lou Bogash.

Tod Smith, the Canton, O., light weight, who surprised the fans by his defeat of Buddy Clark at Lynn the other night, is booked to meet Joe Walcott, the nephew of the one time welter champion, in another 10, while "Happy" Howard and Jimmy Madden, the ex-sailor champion, will meet in the fourth 10 rounder.

BRIGGS CAPTURES BROOKLINE TENNIS BOWL

Alden Briggs won permanent possession of the Brookline bowl by defeating Wirt Kimball in the final round of singles in the Town of Brookline's tennis tournament on the Dean road courts, 6—3, 6—2, 6—4.

The Brookline bowl was first placed in competition in 1921. Briggs has won three legs in a row, 1923, 1924 and now 1925. Kimball, whom Briggs vanquished in singles saturday, won a leg on the bowl in 1923 and Phil Richardson won the first leg in 1921.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland.

THREE QUARTERS of the time a man spends with his wife he's asleep—and the rest, he is only half awake.

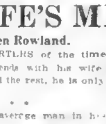
Alas, if the average man in his lovemaking would only display half the delicacy, the tact and the savoir faire of the average lover!



Helen Rowland

It's irresistible charm of professional skill and amateur enthusiasm which carries you off your feet—but, WHERE will you find one like that, nowadays!

It's hard to stay chums with a married woman; either her husband doesn't like you, and spoils it all—or he LOES like you, and she spoils it all.

Cat-nap is the smoked glass through which a bachelor looks at a woman, in order to avoid being dazzled by any one of them.

A woman tames a heart with run and any mold you like—but, alas, it never keeps its shape for more than a day or two.

In the movies, a man never cuts himself while shaving, a woman can pack for a trip to Europe in twenty seconds, everybody gets the right number the moment he picks up the telephone, and no matter how many times she may be rescued from drowning, a girl never comes out of curl in her life wonderful!

It is just as foolish to forswear romance and love because they so seldom last, as it is to forswear flowers because they are bound to fade.

DAILY SHORT STORY

AT fifty Joseph Matthews was called a successful banker. Until he was forty-five he was called a shiftless failure. Then came the turning point of his ignoble life. A brother who had accumulated a small fortune died, and the greatest part of his wealth was bequeathed to the shrewd and undeserving gambler of questionable character.

It was whispered among friends that Matthews would squander this legacy as he had all other money that had come to him. But he acted contrary to general supposition. He secured a lease on a fashionable apartment, befitted himself with the surroundings of a gentleman, sought advice as to the best means of investing his money, and then entered into the quiet life of a matured bachelor.

Looked for Wife

Five years passed. He celebrated his fiftieth birthday with the directors of the Republic Trust Company, of which he was now vice-president. Then came the realization that a successful banker should acquire a wife, and perhaps a family. Mr. Matthews, in a cold, unromantic manner sought a woman to meet his requirements. A young theatrical star attracted his attention. In the same businesslike fashion as he would negotiate a loan, he arranged an introduction and dinner, a friendship, later an engagement, and, finally, a marriage.

A gentleman of his standing should have a valet, he thought. So, he advertised.

An unusual situation arose. An ex-convict came in answer to his call. He was still young, although he had served ten years in Sing Sing for grand larceny. At first, Joseph Matthews ridiculed the idea of employing such a person. But there was something else to be considered.

There was a letter of recommendation from the warden of the famous institution. Not only was it personally addressed to Matthews but the warden requested that the ex-convict be given the position. He had been a trusty and had served the warden in many personal affairs. He was just the right man, the letter said; "one who will serve faithfully and appreciate a good home." Matthews considered the matter.

Likeable Chap

The applicant, Weston Jenkins, was a likeable chap despite his criminal record. They spoke regarding salary, hours and tasks. Then Jenkins scored his winning point. He said he desired a good home and intelligent surroundings; salary was secondary consideration.

Matthews was flattered. The remark about "intelligent surroundings" was a compliment, he thought. The man's point of view concerning salary was superb. He was employed immediately.

While completing his attire that evening he stopped to admire a pearl necklace which he would present to her.

A knock upon the door disturbed him. The voice of Jenkins called: "Are you in your room, sir?"

The banker hesitated before answering. He wished to hide the necklace but he did not know the proper place. He could not find the box in which it came, so, he began to thrust it into his bathrobe pocket. But, he decided that this would not do. Neither would the bureau drawer. But the tie-rack, ah, the ideal place. He reached forward and hung it on the knob among his cravats.

His apartment was on the ground floor. While dressing, the curtain had been lowered. Now he raised it.

"Come in Jenkins," he called.

The valet entered. The room suddenly brightened.

"An important 'phone message, sir. The party said it was urgent.'

Leaves the Room

Joseph Matthews left the room in a flutter. The phone was in the library, on the opposite side of the hall. Weston Jenkins stood at the door watching. When he heard the banker's voice he rushed to the bureau. Kneeling, he searched the lower drawers quickly. Hastily he rose and hurried to the clothes closet. He worked with the lock and forced the door open.

As he was looking inside Matthews came up the hall. Jenkins heard him. He quickly straightened up, faced the mirror and combed his long fingers through his hair.

Matthews did not enter the room. Glancing to the tie-rack he saw that the necklace was gone. He smiled wisely. So this was the game, eh! Well, he, too, would take a hand.

Once again in the library he spoke in a whisper, "Police Headquarters? Send two men to the Dexalo Apartments; Mr. Matthews, 2 b. Please hurry."

He replaced the phone on the mahogany desk and serenely returned to the bedroom.

Quite a Scare

"Quite a scare, at first," he said in a most unusual voice of friendliness. "These theatrical people cause such commotion. And, by the way Jenkins, suppose you brush my overcoat and the suits in the wardrobe. You know we leave in a few days—honeymoon bound."

Jenkins smiled.

Jenkins nodded and continued his work. Matthews continued a pretense of dressing. The bell sounded. He left in answer to its nervous ring.

When he returned he was accompanied by a sergeant and a fat policeman. "This is the man," he said, closing the door after him. "He has stolen a valuable necklace, which I left here some minutes ago. He is an ex-convict, by the way—Weston Jenkins; came from Sing Sing with a letter from the warden. Forgery, I suppose, but I believed him at the time."

Weston was startled. He gazed at the officers in amazement. His eyes flashed and squinted and his teeth showed in sheer mockery. "I get the drift. Set up, eh? Think you can frame me; send me back."

The sergeant grunted with disgust. He pushed Weston against the wall and removed his coat. But there was nothing in his pockets.

"We'll get it back if we have to strip you," thundered Matthews.

The fat policeman had been silent. He walked to the window and lowered the curtain.

Matthews flushed. He attempted to speak but his words jumbled in his throat. Embarrassed, he looked at the other men, first one and then another.

"I have made a grave mistake," he said with a great effort. "I see it now; can see it easily. I hung the necklace on that batch of ties.

TABLES TURNED

By W. Moran-McKinless

When I raised the curtain, the curtain-stick brushed the necklace, lifted it and carried it up to the top of the window. I see now that any man can make a mistake. I apologize Jenkins. Officers, you are dismissed."

Wait a Moment

"Oh! No," protested Jenkins. "Just a minute. Now I'll say my lines."

He rushed forward and grasped his employer's arm. With a quick jerk he forced the banker's hand from his bathrobe pocket. An automatic fell to the floor.

"Thought you'd get away with it did you? You deceitful hypocrite. Posture the gun play as a last resort. I've a good mind to punch your head; should have done it weeks ago.

"Look in the closet," Jenkins continued smiling. "The egg is making off with $500 000 of government bonds. He thought he could skip with the girl tonight and leave me flat. Not a chance, officer. Take him away. I'll take the bag.

The sergeant was bewildered. He stemmed a conglomeration of puzzling words.

"Who are you?" he asked.

"My credentials are in my coat. I am Dunbarton, bank detective. This is my first case. But my diplomatic scheme made it interesting. He has been under observation a year. And he called me a 'dirty thief.' Take him away."

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

HOW HE BECAME A JOCKEY

By Foxy Grandpa

"THE new horses have arrived," I said my friend whom we were visiting out in California.

"That's fine," said I, "I would like to see them."

"Come out with me to the stable and look them over, Foxy Grandpa. There's a pretty gray and white, and two pintos and a black horse, which I would like you to try for me. They say he has a fine gait and perhaps you will enjoy riding him while you are here."

We went out to the stable and the groom brought out the new horses. I looked them over and as the black horse came by I said:

"I do believe that fellow looks like a race horse. Look at his slender legs and small feet. He is certainly built like a Kentucky thoroughbred."

"I don't know his breeding," said my friend, "but I hardly think he has been trained for the track, because the man who bought him for me knew that I wanted to use him for a saddle horse."

"That may be," said I, "but he does look as if he were built for speed."

"Would you like to try him for me?" asked my friend.

"With pleasure," I replied. "I'll go and get into my riding clothes and be ready in about fifteen minutes."

It was all right at first. We trotted out of the gate and when we came to the road I checked him in and we broke into a canter. We loped along for a while and then when I turned on the highway which led into town that horse started to gallop and then before I realized it or could get him under control at all, he started running—tearing with the bit between his teeth and my coat-tails flying in the wind like Paul Revere's must have the night of his famous ride.

This was no fun, I want to tell you. We passed automobiles as if they were standing still. I didn't know what to do and I couldn't understand it. All I could do was to hang on and try to stop the horse by sawing on his mouth. But it didn't help.

On and on we went. The trees whizzed by my eyes as if I were on a railroad train. Several times we almost side-swiped motor-cars.

Over another fence we went and then before I knew it we were tearing around a race track. Around and around we went. I grew dizzier and dizzier. How long could this horse hold out and why didn't he stop?

Finally I was almost exhausted and we fortunately began to slow up at that moment. Little by little we slackened our pace and then all of a sudden my horse collapsed on the ground and with a great sigh turned over, scrambled to his feet and stood panting by my side.

I didn't realize it at the time, but quite a crowd of the townsfolk had assembled and were watching the performance. But no one had been able to stop our mad race. When it was all over Jimmy came running up to me and said:

"Don't be sore at that horse and give him a bad name, Foxy Grandpa. He says he will never do it again. But, you see, he won a race once on this track and when he recognized the road to it he said he just couldn't help himself—he just had to try that track again."

"That's all right, Bunny," I laughed. "It didn't do any harm, and besides, it's a great satisfaction to me to feel that I might have made a great success in life as a jockey. But think how much better I could have ridden if I had had on a satin jacket and a jockey's cap!"

DR. REED'S SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association

DO you eat only inspected meat?

Do you know whether any of the meat you eat has been inspected?

If not, you owe it to yourself to ascertain the truth.

You owe it not only to yourself but to the community in which you live to make a frank demand of your butcher for this information. You likewise have the right to demand his safeguard for one of your most important articles of diet.

It is possible that you do not know just what meat inspection means, I cannot explain this process any more conclusively than by pointing to an instance, indicating the necessity for the practice, the object of which is to protect you against the possibility of consuming diseased meat.

A buyer for one of the largest slaughtering establishments in an important city was buying some steers from a farmer. He had selected some fat, sleek animals, after which he came to one, equally fat and sleek, but with large bumps in its neck just back of the jaw bone.

"I don't want that one," he said pointing to the lumpy necked animal.

"All right," replied the farmer, "I'll sell him for just as much to the butcher in our country town. We don't have inspection there."

The meaning of this brief conversation was simply this: The lumps in the neck of this steer showed that it had tuberculosis. It likewise showed that certain of the internal organs, most probably the lives, possibly the lungs, or the intestines, were likewise the seat of the disease. It meant, in short, that the animal was unfit for food.

It furthermore meant that the buyer, whose ethical principles and commercial interests combined to make him protect his customers, would not buy the animal. But, even if he had not been a man of such high principles, he knew that in his slaughtering establishment there were inspectors who would condemn the carcass as soon as the animal was slaughtered and that he would thereby sustain a loss.

There is, however, a much more significant side to the incident. It pointed to the fact that, in the country town in question, there was at least one unscrupulous butcher with no system of inspection to protect his customers from either his ignorance or his dishonesty.

It was to meet widespread conditions, of which the preceding is but a concrete instance, that the United States Government, through the department of agriculture, instituted the policy of inspecting all slaughtered animals that were destined for interstate commerce. That was the limit of jurisdiction of the national government under the law.

PHONE PETITION IS BEING CIRCULATED

Charles A. Coughlin, ex-alderman of Medford, and framer of the bill providing for the direct election of the Public Utilities Commission, has begun his drive for the 20,000 signatures in support of his measure, necessary in order to have it placed on the ballot at the next State election.

The petition was filed by Mr. Coughlin on Aug. 27, and delivered to him on Sept. 18, but under the law the 20,000 signatures must be obtained within 90 days from Sept. 3. Therefore, the petitioner has lost 15 days, which, however, he expects to overcome with the assistance of many co-workers.

The "Initiative Petition" containing the following original signatures is being circulated:

MORE LETTERS POUR IN.

The Boston Evening American's fight against the increased telephone rates, authorized by the Public Utilities Commission, gains ground daily with the increase of public sentiment against them.

Letters by the score are received from persons vigorously opposed to the "grab" which entitled the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company to an increase of $8,400,000. Some of the many letters follow: Mrs. C. V. Pettee, No. 23 King street, Weymouth, Mass., writes:

"My neighbors join this protest heartily. We think the telephone company is no worse than the coal interests, but those also control food prices, but if we can assist in breaking up the combine by starting on the telephone company can we?"

T. J. Macdonald, 123 Fulton street, Medford, writes:

"I wish to voice my protest against the increase in telephone rates most strongly."

Edward Dolloff, No. 3 Nightingale street, Dorchester, writes:

"It may interest you to learn that I have recently discontinued my telephone service on account of the unjustified increase in rates."

Edward Doherty, No. 82 Garfield street, Revere, writes:

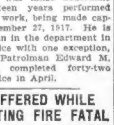
"This is to advise you that I have had my telephone removed as a protest to the increased rates with such poor service."

Lillian B. Le Couffe—of No. 3 Wesley Park, Somerville, writes:

"Your paper many nights has called the friend of the people. We have men who are supposed to look after the welfare of those same people. No man or body of men would allow a concern as rich as the telephone company to raise rates the way they have allowed that concern unless they were recompensed for same."

CAPTAIN E. A. CARTER 65 YEARS OLD TODAY

Captain Eugene A. Carter of the Somerville Police Department today received congratulations upon reaching his sixty-fifth birthday. He recently rounded out forty-one years of service in the department. Sixty-five roses adorned the captain's desk when he reported for work. The captain, who has seen many changes in police work in his years of service, enjoys good health and is in excellent physical condition. He was born in Wilmington, Mass., in 1860, and was appointed to the police department April 1, 1884. He performed night duty in East Somerville and in Union square and from January 1, 1892, was promoted to sergeant. Ten years later, May 22, 1902, he was made lieutenant and for fifteen years performed only plain clothes work, being made captain on September 27, 1917. He is the oldest man in the department in point of service, with one exception, his brother, Patrolman Edward M. Carter, who completed forty-two years of service in April.



Capt. E. A. Carter

BURNS SUFFERED WHILE FIGHTING FIRE FATAL

Waterville, Me., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Mark T. Claflin, fifty-eight, of Waterville, died at Milbridge as a result of burns received when he was nearly trapped in his cottage there. Claflin was a thirty-second degree Mason. He had been in the machinery business here for many years.

"HIGHWAY ROBBERY"

That is what the housewives of Greater Boston and the State call the new schedule of increased rates granted the telephone company. Fight the injustice and rebuke the Public Utilities Commission by signing this petition and thus register your personal protest.

TELEPHONE PETITION

TO GOVERNOR FULLER:

We, the undersigned, subscribers of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, voice our protest against the increase of rates for telephone service as granted by the Public Utilities Commission of Massachusetts, and petition that the former schedule of rates be restored immediately.

isn't birth control, but finding a place to put the Japanese children as fast as they arrive.

SECRETARY WILBUR, of the Navy, says he will not allow Colonel Mitchell to testify in the Shenandoah investigation. "Rats!" barks Secretary Wilbur, "could Colonel Mitchell in Texas know about the wreck of the Shenandoah in Ohio?"

He might ask: "What could Henry Ford in Detroit know about the breaking down of an automobile engine in Alabama?" Ford might know a good deal, for he knows about automobiles.

Colonel Mitchell in Texas, having devoted his life to flying, might know more about the wreck of the Shenandoah than Secretary Wilbur in Washington could possibly know.

"GENERAL PERSHING will be the principal witness against Colonel Mitchell at his trial for advertising army and navy flying incompetency."

Nobody will enjoy that jokes more than General Pershing. It happens that General Pershing has never been up in a flying machine in his life. Naturally he won't be eager to give advice on flying.

If General Pershing, an old frontiersman and Indian fighter, does not know that some horse broker would be the principal witness in an Indian fight investigation, that would amuse him.

MR. SARGENT, the able gentleman appointed Attorney General by President Coolidge, has a motto, earnestly recommended to every citizen, that would push the United States into a World Court or a League of Nations.

When reporters asked him about things with which he is not concerned, Attorney General Sargent replied, "I believe in minding my own business."

Uncle Sam had that same motto, in the days of George Washington. He would do well to stick to it.

MRS. MORTLOCK, possessing no direct and confidential communication with spirits, started "The Lotus Flower Spiritualistic Church." Accused of telling fortunes, she is arrested, and Magistrate Vitale calls her a menace to society, fines her $100, and says it is a shame for her to disguise herself as a minister in order to tell fortunes.

IN VAIN Mrs. Mortlock protested. "I had a little church in which I told, for modest pay, what I thought would happen on THIS EARTH to members of my congregation. You threaten me with jail.

"Thousands of others have churches in which, for pay, they tell their congregations what they think is going to happen in another world. That is fortune telling also.

"How do you know my predictions about things on this earth are less accurate than the predictions of other preachers about things that will happen in the world to come?"

How can you argue with a lady as obstinate as that?

Looking Into the Heavens

All Human Beings Will Delight in It Some Day

The Poet of the Heavens Studies God's Greatest Poem

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge."

This picture shows you the great French astronomer, Camille Flammarion, recently dead, looking through his telescope at the starry firmament. He was called "The poet of the heavens" because his writings on astronomy made the subject interesting and "poetical" even to the DULLEST mind.

He took his readers flying through space to the great double and triple stars, and to the vast nebulae, in which our sun, this earth and the other planets could sink and be lost like a mouse in the Giant Cave of Kentucky.

This picture will be seen by millions of people, of whom only a few KNOW anything about the stars or CARE anything about them, except that they are "specks of light" which you can see on a dark night.

The day is coming when man's greatest delight will be the study of the firmament, the "stellar universe," the magnificent poem written by the hand of Divine Power across the page of endless space, through the centuries of infinite time.

Go out into the pasture where the grass is short, and you see that interesting little creature the tumblebug, with his mate busy rolling a little black ball toward his burrow, to be stored away for food later on.

The two little tumblebugs are concentrated on that rather unpleasant little treasure of theirs. They roll it over and over, and they think of nothing else. It's a little sphere of cow manure, and oh! how important.

This great earth on which they live and die means nothing to them.

Those tumblebugs in the field taking their treasure home are not unlike 999 out of 1,000 human beings.

We are concentrated on this little ball of earth, and like two-legged concentrated tumblebugs we devote all our thought to the little earth ball which is OUR TREASURE. Many of us go all through life without ever looking at the heavens, except perhaps to see "if it looks like rain."

In our journey around the sun, inside of our own little solar system, we journey through space more than five hundred million miles every year. That means nothing to Mr. Average Man. But if he has an automobile that can go seventy miles an hour, that's WONDERFUL.

The fact that we live on an earth which turns around at the rate of more than one thousand miles an hour means nothing.

Some day the human race will become more worthy of the magnificent universe in which it is a tiny, unimportant but at least A THINKING atom.

In that day of a higher civilization and a higher race, the heavens will indeed "declare the glory of God" to men that understand and appreciate.

"Big Men" Will Think—

When Their Pockets Are Pinched

Some "big interests" would push the United States into a World Court, and transfer United States sovereignty from Washington to a well-packed institution in Europe.

Perhaps these "big interests" will think a LITTLE, when they read that France demands a conference on world economics, desiring especially a parley "to study tariffs and other barriers."

Tariffs and other barriers are interesting to the United States and to BIG people in the United States.

Tear down the tariff, open our markets to Europe and Asia, and our prosperity would melt "unsmote by the sword" and our factories and mills would close rapidly.

How long would it take that famous World Court to deliberate and decide international tariff questions against us, if the United States were foolish enough to submit itself to World Court decision?

You might say that the United States would not SUBMIT to World Court decisions affecting the United States. Then why GO into a World Court that would have no meaning for the United States?

And if it WOULD have a meaning, such as regulating our tariffs for us, and deciding how much of our international debt should be paid, why go into the Court AT ALL?

United States steelmakers will be interested in the ques- — compelled France to specialize in steel production, ized in the production of silks, satins, velvets after the famous "Field of the Cloth of Gold." steel competition, unprotected by an adequate tariff, would butcher the values of our steel stocks, and the stocks of many other industrial enterprises.

And what French competition would do, German, Belgian and British competition would do also. Let us keep out of the League, the World Court, mind our business and retain the right to manage our own affairs.

Breaking Up the Party

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when wealthy people are sending their pets away for a rest. After a Pekinese barks three or four times in succession he needs a vacation.

ONE woman keeps a Pomeranian for a watch dog. The dog saw a burglar the other night and had a nervous breakdown.

HER Angora cat got water on the brain from sticking his head in the goldfish bowl.

SHE sent the cat to the country when it's really the goldfish that need the rest.

A NEW YORK dame was in Europe last Summer and kept sending post cards to her Airedale.

THE butler dipped the dog's paw in a bottle of ink and made him answer them.

IT'S going pretty far when you have to get your dog to write letters for you.

THIS woman went crazy if she didn't hear from her cat every morning.

SHE was so careful of the cat that she made her husband catch his mice for him.

THE poor fellow got house-maid's knee from crawling along the base-boards.

HE wasn't lazy but he hated to do a cat's work.

AND every time he caught a mouse he had to wake up the cat and give it to him.

HE even had to shave so that his whiskers wouldn't frighten the mice.

A MOUSE gets suspicious when- ever he sees a mustache creeping along the floor.

IT got so that instead of growling around the office, he used to meow.

HE was down on the floor playing with a catnip ball.

HE grew to be so much like a cat that even the dogs in the neigh- borhood started chasing him.

SOME women should be more con- siderate of their husbands. Dogs, cats, goldfish and canary birds may be wonderful company, but there's only one kind of an animal that can pay your rent.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "THE LAST LAP OF EDUCATION."

AMERICAN WOMEN, when
It comes to MEN, want
To be CONQUERORS:
FRENCH women want to
Be CONQUERED;
At least, that is
OUR STORY AND WE STICK TO IT.
But when American women
Go to EUROPE they SOMETIMES permit
Themselves to be CONQUERED, and French
Women, outside of
Their own country,
HAVE been known to
Do a little CONQUERING
On their OWN ACCOUNT,
THIS is ONE of the ADVANTAGES of TRAVEL! It not only
Broadens one's MIND, but
It improves one's TECHNIQUE.
American MEN sometimes have WRONG IDEAS of FRENCH
WOMEN and they have to be RE-FORMED; but the AMERICAN Woman probably gets the FRENCHMAN'S
Number CORRECTLY.
Altogether, this seems to Be part of our ANNUAL

THE FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters Must Not Contain More Than Two Hundred Words.
No Anonymous Communications Will Be Considered.

Safeguarding Students

To the Friend of the People:

All praise to Massachusetts for putting a strong ban on bad literature from circulation among students! There will be over 35,000 young students in this area before the middle of next month.

Thanks to Irish jurors, who have judged these matters with a clear moral sense. I mention this type of jurymen because I have found them standing back of reforms which are made in the best interests of the youth. They are not to be sure the only ones, but they make themselves frank in condemning this kind of literature.

J. FRANK CHASE,
Watch and Ward Society, Boston.

At the Bargain Counter

To the Friend of the People:

Some women are exasperating in buying materials, as your correspondent claims, in this column.

As a woman, I am glad that he has opened a broadside against these patience wreckers, for they not only wear out the nerves of the clerks, but they are as thorns in the flesh to other women standing by the counter waiting to be served.

Another type of woman I would like to see put under control. It is the bargain counter plunger.

MARIE BERNHARDT,
Cottage Hill, West Somerville, Mass.

Rats Have Moved

To the Friend of the People:

There is one thing that the coal strike has done. It has driven out the rats that have infested the mines, dependent upon the grain which fell from the mouths of the mules while eating.

Since the mules have left the mines and come to the surface, so have the rats. The rodents are now invading the houses and schoolrooms in Hazleton, Pa.

The problem of getting rid of the rats in the mines has now been solved.

JAMES D. ROBINSON,
New Bedford, Mass. (formerly of Hazleton).

More Traffic Officers

To the Friend of The People:

Congress and Milk streets is one of them.

This is what a sergeant of the police force told me this week, after witnessing a smash-up near where we were talking.

A notice in your column you are urging the avoidance of auto accidents. If we had more traffic officers, many of the accidents could be avoided. At the corner of Forty-Second street and Fifth avenue, New York City, they have seven officers on duty, one at each corner of the street and three in the center.

Accidents have stopped at this point.

R. H. GAYLORD,
State street, Boston.

Don't Argue With Officer

To the Friend of the People:

Don't argue with the traffic officer. Just as soon as he hails you, he has the advantage on account of his position, not on account of his reasoning.

Even judges give him preference in court. Just keep still and let him do the talking.

A typical case like this came to light when a traffic officer in a town not 20 miles from Boston ran into the auto of an esteemed professor.

The traffic officer was mad over his mistake and accused the professor of driving 80 miles an hour. He was really driving only 10 miles an hour as he had an aged person with him who could not stand high speed.

After the officer was told that he should be ousted from his position for his reckless driving, he sued the professor for damages which he himself brought about.

R. B. WALMSEY,
Wellesley Fells, Mass.

Women Preachers

To the Friend of the People:

There are one hundred and two women preachers in New England. These are distributed among the Unitarians, Universalists, Methodists, Baptists and a few smaller bodies.

The Episcopal Church has no women preachers. Rev. Dr. Florence Buck, of Boston, is the only woman preacher who has had conferred upon her, the degree of doctor of divinity. Rev. Sarah Dixon, formerly pastor of Hyannis Union Church, is considered one of the best women preachers in this part of the country. She is gifted with a flow of good English, presented with that rare descriptive power, that has won for her praise wherever she has preached.

SARAH M. MOULTON,
Arlington, Mass.

IF GOOD COMES OUT OF TENNESSEE TRIAL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

"THE trouble with the Bible in America," says Bernard Shaw, "is that though very few read it, everybody thinks he knows what is in it."

The anti-evolution trial in Tennessee, we hear it frequently said, did good because it made people think.

However, the degree of good, resulting from this thinking, will depend largely upon what is used as a basis of thought.

Thinking is like chewing.

The amount of benefit you derive from it depends upon what you are chewing.

You can chew highly flavored gum all day and your body will starve to death.

If your only basis for thinking about evolution and religion is the highly-flavored, popularized newspaper stories which appeared as the trial continued little will result but a collection of hazy ideas and prejudices.

Only by going to reliable sources will you have a solid basis.

These sources are twofold.

Naturally, one is a good book explaining the theory of evolution.

Several understandable volumes are now on the market and others are coming from the presses.

Most people in a hazy way, confuse the theory of evolution with the ideas of Charles Darwin. Many others do not know that no recognized evolutionist ever said man descended from monkeys.

As naturally, the other source is the Bible.

Here Bernard Shaw's statement has pertinency.

Often those who understand the theory of evolution take for granted the explanation of the Bible given by William J. Bryan and other self-appointed interpreters without going to the original source and thinking from it.

To think profitably about the evolution trial your thinking should be based upon these two sources.

If good comes out of Tennessee, it will be greater enlightenment on the Bible and evolution.

The depth of this good will depend upon the number of people who are stimulated to turn to the real sources of information for their thinking.

SCIENCE SOMEWHAT A TREADMILL

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Your articles, inspiring us laymen to think, encourage me to ask this: "Since the great men of science during many centuries considered the Ptolemean system as the true one, while Copernicus cast it aside, so that from his time his system has prevailed, how are we sure that the last one will not be upset by some philosopher to come?—L. K., Chicago."

WE are all laymen in the eyes of nature. Nature grants no doctorates. We are all undergraduates because our science is a never finished education.

If science be a treadmill, at the worst it is one whose track, unlike that of an old-fashioned threshing machine, comes endlessly down from infinity, and offers continually new planking for the patient horses of investigation to tramp forward upon, seeming to make progress, yet remaining always under the same- swallow-haunted roof.

May Seem Cynical

This image may not do full justice to human knowledge, it may seem cynical, but in many respects it is not inapt. If the horses on the threshing machine were endowed with a little reasoning power, they might infer from the marks of wear on the rolling track that they were not really advancing; but if the track stretching down from the sky came always fresh and untrodden under their feet, the deception of onward movement would be uncorrected.

To some extent this is true in science. Countless new facts are discovered, listed, recorded and piled up in unread, and often unreadable, volumes without any corresponding advance of fundamental knowledge. The form is changed, the details are rearranged, but the essential truth remains about the same. Aristotle's and Pliny's mistakes about animals were only errors of observation and classification.

Fresh-looking pedals, scarred by no cork-marks, are continually passing under the feet of the tramping investigators—but they still stub steadily on, inclosed in the immovable treadmill of uncomprehended nature. Our marvelous, mechanical progress, of which we are so immensely (and justly) proud, does not get us out from beneath the mud nests lining the eaves of our sheltering blanket, our natal barn.

"Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers."

Still there are gains, even though they be formal rather than essential. One of these, it seems to me, is the Copernican view of the solar system. I am not at all impressed by the statement that, from the Einsteinian viewpoint, it is a matter of indifference whether the earth goes around the sun or the sun around the earth.

For mathematical purposes that has long been so. We almost always treat of the apparent motions produced by the earth's rotation and revolution as if they were real. They are convenient reflections of the reality.

But that is not to say that, philosophically, the Ptolemean theory is just as good as the Copernican. It is not good at all, because it is contrary to evident facts, and to reason and common sense.

Cannot Be Changed

On the other hand, it is inconceivable that the essential basis of the Copernical theory, viz., that the sun is the centre around which all planets travel, and its corollary that the apparent diurnal revolution of the whole sky, together with its contents, around the earth, is caused by the earth's real rotation on its axis—it is inconceivable, I say, that this should ever be changed to make way for some new theory.

The life of theories depends upon the substantiality of the facts they are built upon. Ptolemy's imaginary system was accepted for fifteen centuries, only because the growth of the knowledge of facts which eventually upset it was very slow.

PROSPECT OF INHERITANCE MAY BE HARMFUL

Are you figuring on a snug little sum from a relative when he dies?

As a result you slide along easily with no special effort to build up a strong foundation upon which to stand.

If your life is guided by the prospects of easy money from some other person, you will be robbed of initiative.

Having no incentive for self-establishment you miss the pleasure which comes of achievement by your own efforts.

Your anticipation of inherited wealth may never be realized.

When you wake up to the fact that you are strictly on your own, how much harder it will be!

Relatives have peculiar notions, sometimes, and the minds of aged persons often change.

After all it might be better for you to miss that little stake.

And you may miss it just because said wealthy relative realizes that you are being weakened by the prospects of an inheritance.
